DAILY EDITION.

Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1920.

Greetings to Premier Oliver.

It is some time since Premier Oliver has visited this city, some people think much too long, but he is here and we greet him most cordially. We are always glad to see any premier, but especially one who has done as much for his province as has the visitor of today. Tonight he will address a public meeting and there will be no need to ask for a big turnout on that occasion, especially in view of the attack made on him by Mr. Bowser and the surety that he will answer the leader of the opposition with no uncertain voice. He has come at an opportune time, and all who were at the Empress Theatre on Monday night will want to be there tonight.

Ship Contracts
Seem Likely.

It seems very likely, in view of the announcements that have been made, that there will be more ships built at Prince Rupert after those now on the stocks have been completed. Until the contracts are actually signed, nothing is certain, especially in view of other announcements which have been made here, but the condition is most hopeful and we all look forward to a prosperous time for years to come. There will undoubtedly be little flies in the ointment but those we must always expect. There is unusual cause for optimism. With plenty of fish cars and the shipyard working we are bound to have good times here.

Reaching Out
For Business.

People in the surrounding country look to Prince Rupert for a lead in matters of development, and they sometimes look in vain. They complain that the people of the city are not sufficiently interested in the interior points. We think they are wrong. Everyone we know is intensely interested in everything between here and the mountains. That is why the Daily News makes an effort to publish so much news of the communities in the interior. We have to work together if we expect to prosper. Prince Rupert is necessary as a market and supply centre for the interior settlements, and the interior settlements are necessary to the prosperity of Prince Rupert.

News Gathering
Is Expensive.

Gathering news is expensive. We publish news of interior points whenever we can get it. The News has a large circulation and it is worth something to the communities to be given prominence in these columns. If we get the support of the farmers and miners and others of the interior we can give more and more the news of the districts. As it is we could publish more news if some public-spirited person in each community would send in brief accounts of local happenings. We cannot, however, publish jibes on fellow citizens nor bits of scandal. We are trying to rise above the plane of the country newspaper and publish a dignified sheet that will give a good impression when it is sent abroad.

Many Send Paper
To Their Friends.

Many subscribers to the News send the paper to their friends after they have read it. The custom is more prevalent than is generally understood. It is a custom that should be encouraged, for there are times when a copy of the paper is the best advertising the community can receive. We suggest that whenever there is an article bearing on the development of the district, those who have interested friends should send them marked copies. This may benefit the News but it is of still greater benefit to the community as a whole.

GROWING VEGETABLES
IN PRINCE RUPERT

Picture and Article in Farm and Home

In the current number of Farm and Home is a picture of Mrs. Hammond in her garden at Prince Rupert. The accompanying article, which is signed J. S. D. follows:

"Here is a snapshot of one of the aristocrats of Prince Rupert, B.C., and her fine garden. The ground upon which the garden is made was originally all muskeg, but Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, who have resided here eight years, cleared off the stumps and rocks, dug up the muskeg and drained it. They then carted good soil from the odd places where it is found here and spread a layer of it over the muskeg. This, with a good coat of manure and some lime they worked up well, and planted their seed. Since then they have grown their own supply of vegetables and various fruits, always fresh and toothsome."

"It took a lot of work and patience, but the work was a pleasure and the joy they derive from the added beauty of their property and the profit they get out of what had been a useless eyesore, is a recompence that repays them many fold. They have, for its size, as fine a garden as you will find in a day's ramble anywhere in the lower Fraser Valley."

The Man in the Moon
SAYS:-

THAT there were a lot of sick people around town yesterday, allegedly because they could not get their regular nap.

THAT girls sometimes call up the boys prior to marriage but call them down afterwards and with much greater regularity.

THAT Scotch weather is said to be the kind that's close.

THAT there are a lot of people wishing they were the Government since the Government gets all the confiscated liquor.

THAT—
Here's to the Lake,
The river or rill
Where trout always "take".
And mosquitoes are still.

(N.B.—In the last line I do not mean "still busy," as the hello girls say.)

THAT liquor is still in the minds of both drys and wets just now and there is a thirsty squad that has not been able to get any since the police became active.

THAT it is a sure sign of matrimonial infidelity when the wife lolls around the house without her hair or complexion and the man forgets to shave and eats onions.

THAT—
He lost a case of liquor
But he stumbled on a trace.
And he sued a fellow for it,
But the lawyer lost the case.

THAT some people around town are asking if it was really necessary for Mr. Bowser to speak for nearly two and a half hours, considering all he could find to say.

THAT some were unkind enough to intimate that ten minutes should have been long enough.
