SENSATIONAL SILVER STRIKE KITSUMKALUM

Report Brought to Terrace of a Wonderful Vein on Maroon Mountain.

What appears to be the big sensational strike of the Kitsumkalum Lake mining district was made this week when a seam said to be 30 feet in width was struck while cross tunneling on Maroon Mountain, says the Terrace News.

The discovery was made on the property of John Coutre and Oscar Gendron, while working on their claims. The original workings were almost at the top of Maroon mountain and the boys had gone down the slope several hundred feet to run in a cross tunnel to tap the vein. They had expected to go in about 60 feet or more, but at a depth of six feet struck the vein which carried native silver in greater quantities than any yet found. The vein is said to be over 25 feet wide. They are now going down still another hundred feet and tunnelling into the side again to get a working tunnel and also to prove the strength of the vein. Men well versed in mining who have seen the mine state that if the depth is there, Maroon mountain will see one of the greatest silver camps in B.C.

Geo. Clothier, government mining engineer, when through the district a few weeks ago, spoke very confidently that the property would prove good and would warrant a camp before long.

Mr. Clothier also found remarkable showings of free gold on the claim of Mat Allard. They washed a pan taken from the mine which showed a lot of gold. Mr. Clothier is confident of the future of the district, and it only remains for the prospectors to do the development work.
