TELKWA

Mr. and Mrs. Sandborn, of San Gabriel, Cal., are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Tom Jefferson. They intend staying here for two weeks before proceeding on their journey to New York, returning to California some time in November.

Another old-timer is here in the person of Lem Broughton, who arrived with the intention of staying three days, but changed his mind and is going to remain over for the Barbecue. He is at the McNeil ranch enjoying the pastime of breaking some young colts.

If the way the straws fly is any indication of how the wind is blowing, then Telkwa is becoming quite a political centre. We have had visits from Colonel Peck and both leaders in the provincial house and the minister of lands. The sitting member will no doubt give the district another look over.

The Grand Trunk Pacific have started on the new siding and loading facilities. The steam shovel and a big gang are busy getting the yard and track into shape. Let us hope they keep at it until they finish the job.

Jack McNeil has gone on an extended business trip to the east. He will likely be away for three weeks.

Tom Jefferson is leaving for New York on a business trip.

Louis Schorn has closed up shop and gone into the hills to take a first hand look at his mining interests. From all reports he has the goods.

EVIDENCE IN LIQUOR CASE

ner of Sixth Street and Third Ave. while the rest proceeded in the car. The bottle produced in court was identified by Money as the bottle sold by Carlson.

In cross examination, W. E. Williams, the defending lawyer, brought out the evidence that Money had never seen Miller tending bar at the New Windsor Cabaret except at the one time when Carlson had gone out on this occasion.

Details Given.

Detective Smith's evidence was substantially corroborative of Money's but a few more details were given. After Carlson had returned from the trip outside, allegedly for the bottle of liquor, he had complained to Miller about how dark it had been and the difficulty he had had in getting the bottle. He also said he had broken his belt so Smith had lent him his own.

Smith also testified that the $2 for drinks had been rung up in the cash register while the $10 for the bottle Carlson had put in his pocket.

Almost every night Smith said he had gone to the New Windsor. Miller was in the habit of coming in about 11:30 each night and checking the cash register, taking away some of the money.

Smith had a long line of credit at the New Windsor, which Miller had told Carlson to extend him.

Cross examined by Mr. Williams, Detective Smith told of having gone at one time to Miller's house for whiskey. Miller had told him that there was a policeman in the house at the time and he couldn't get any then but he had told him to see Carlson.

Other Cases.

D. Zarelli is to come up tomorrow morning to answer similar charges. His arrest was ordered in Vancouver and he arrived by the Prince Rupert this morning.

The Gorley, Black and Olson, and Bestner cases are remanded until September 13, when the other adjourned cases for sentence will also come up.
