Class Distinctions In Britain Going.

M. A. Grainger, chief forester of British Columbia, who has been visiting England recently after an absence of many years, writes most interestingly of his visit in an article published in Victoria recently. He says:

"Class distinctions are being crushed a good deal by England's tremendous burden of war taxation. A family man with a $10,000 income loses one-third of it—just one-third—money which in happier days gave him the appearance and privilege of the well to do. He used to keep a car. He cannot do it now in London because he can't afford a chauffeur, and autos must not be left empty in the narrow streets. The personage with $150,- 000 a year has about half the amount taken in taxes. The average cost of everything has doubled so he really has only about one-quarter of the spending power that he had before the war.

"A yacht of grouse moor are still possible for the wealthy man with usually this difference nowadays, that he must choose which one. He cannot have both. So nine-tenths of the estates are being broken up.

"A stranger hears it said that local agricultural committees have some power to compel a land owner to put good land to use in such manner as may satisfy them. And yet in the same country, this country of queer contrasts, personal liberty is the sacred subject of anti-prohibition posters ten feet high on advertisement hoardings."

Prices in England Seem Appalling.

Mr. Grainger goes on to tell of the prices paid for commodities in England. "The price of fruit is startling to English people, even costermongers' barrows in mean streets showing poor strawberries at 55c. a pound and gooseberries at from 33c. to 45c. a pound, many times pre-war prices. So people go without. Butter at a dollar a pound, a sugar famine, and $1.20 for a dozen eggs, keeps housewives worried, especially among the large classes that live on pensions or small fixed incomes and have been reduced to various degrees of poverty by the increased cost of living."

Power of Suggestion Neatly Illustrated.

Suggestion is one of the greatest powers in the world. We all are open to control. Even those who resent interference by others can be managed if tact is used. The London Times tells of an interesting incident in this connection. It says:

"A few mornings ago the Daily Mail contained a photograph which had won a prize in the competition for amateurs, of two dogs yawning. Now, nothing is so provocative of imitation as the yawn, whether in animal or man. A passenger on the Underground, one nicely sensitive to the humors of life, saw the picture, laughed—then yawned, and laughed again. Looking at the newspaper-readers opposite him, he watched for each to turn to the picture-page. One after another, on reaching it, smiled—and yawned. At last some mysterious link of sympathy brought the eyes of the little company on one another. They all smiled in unison. The first passenger yawned. The rest laughed—and afterwards yawned in chorus."

HOTEL TORN DOWN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 9. — The Clarendon Hotel block, which has occupied for many years one of the most valuable business corners on Portage Avenue, has been torn down and is being replaced by a modern business block. The famous semi-circular 100 ft. bar has made way for a drug store's 50 ft. soda counter.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

After Years of Suffering with Dyspepsia, this Fruit Medicine Gave Relief

Mlle. ANTOINETTE BOUCHER

917 Dorion St., Montreal.

"I am writing to tell you that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives' for this remedy relieved me when I had abandoned all hope of ever recovering my health.

I suffered terribly with Dyspepsia. I had it for years and all the medicines I took did not do me any good.

I read something about 'Fruit-atives' being good for all Stomach Troubles and Disorders of Digestion so I tried them. After finishing a few boxes, I was entirely relieved of the Dyspepsia and my general health was restored.

I thank the great fruit medicine, 'Fruit-a-tives', for this wonderful relief."

PRINCE RUPERT TIDES

Friday, September 10.
High, 11:56 a.m., 19.3 feet.
Low, 5:44 p.m., 3.3 feet.
18 p.m., 5.3 feet.

Saturday, September 11.
High, 0:44 a.m., 20.5 feet.
12:36 p.m., 20.5 feet.
Low, 6:30 a.m., 2.7 feet.
18:48 p.m., 4 feet.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west.
It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight.

The table given is for Port Simpson but the time for Prince Rupert varies only a few minutes on some days and on others is the same. The range of the tide may be computed as 5 per cent greater at Prince Rupert than at Port Simpson both at springs and neaps. Therefore the rise in the Prince Rupert harbor is slightly greater than Port Simpson.

The height is in feet and tenths of feet above the average level of lower low water.

WATER PROBLEM OF REGINA, SASK.

Seven Millions Least Amount at which Supply can be Secured

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 9.—Seven million dollars is the minimum cost at which the southern part of the province can be supplied with water from the South Saskatchewan River. This is the estimate of the South Saskatchewan Water Supply Company, and is based on a wood stave pipe being used. If a concrete pipe line is adopted the cost will be eleven million dollars. Should it be found necessary to adopt this type of construction to make the scheme a success, it would be financially impracticable at the present time, according to Major A. J. McPherson, chairman of the commission. A steel pipe line would cost thirteen million dollars.

RADIO STATIONS ALASKA WATERS

Aids to Navigation to be Placed at Different Points in the North.

Radio compasses, which enable ships at sea to gain accurate bearings in spite of bad weather, are to be installed along the Alaskan coast from Dixon's Entrance to Unimak Pass in the Aleutian Islands, says the Ketchikan Chronicle. A party of naval men went north on the steamship Jefferson in connection with the work today.

Few, if any, of the present commercial radio plants on the coast can be used in connection with the radio compass work, as they are not properly located. It is said that the Ketchikan station is so surrounded by mountains and hills that it would probably be impossible to give accurate directions. Present plans call for the installation of ten new radio stations along the coast. These will probably not be used for commercial business, it is said.

Finding Position.

The operation of the radio compass is simple. Several years ago a system was devised whereby the direction from which a radio message is sent can be determined at a receiving station, and this device is the basis of the compass. If a ship at sea desires to know its position, it flashes a message to two different land stations, both of which are equipped with a direction finder. The stations determine the direction the ship is from them and report their findings to the ship. It is then a comparatively simple matter to determine the ship's exact location.

The new stations will be installed at the principal entrances to Alaskan waters.

Capes Muzon and Chacon will have stations to guide vessels into Dixon's Entrance.

Cape Omay will be the next station up the coast, guiding the entrance to Clarence Straits.

Cape Spencer station with the assistance of Omay or the station to be erected at Cape St.
Elias will guide boats bound to Icy Straits from the westward.

The entrance to Prince William Sound will be guarded by stations at Capes Hinchinbrook and St. Elias.

The entrance to Cook Inlet will be marked by a station on the northeast shore of Afognak Island and some point on the shore of Cook Inlet.

Unimak Pass through the Aleutian chain will be marked by stations at Cape Sarichef, on the Bering Sea side and Scotch Cape at the Pacific entrance.
