The Man in the Moon SAYS:

THAT nursery rhymes are all right for nursery purposes, but when perverted here is what they are like—

Little Miss Muffet
Sat on a tuffet
In the usual feminine way,
But a rich fellow spied her—
And sat down beside her—
Did he frighten Miss Muffet?
Oh, say!

THAT prohibition has at least reduced the number of men who think they can sing.

THAT the verb "to jazz" is declined by one author: "I jazz, thou jazz, he jazz, we jazzed, they were extremely jazzing."

THAT the London Times says a young Scotsman "up for a holiday" who was charged at Willesden police court, had in his possession only "a whistle, a pipe, a fountain pen, and sixpence."

THAT one way of finding health is to get up an hour earlier in the morning to look for it.

THAT a popular saying once was: "A miss is as good as a mile."

THAT the latest suffragette saying is: "A miss is as good as a man."

THAT judging by the way some of them act, it would look as if many a miss thought herself a whole lot better than a man.

THAT it is not polite and hardly necessary to tell some ladies that you see through them.

THAT many Americans are about to move to Ohio in order to give their sons a chance to become president of the U.S.

THAT the ordinary person knows how many quarts in a gallon, and any boat owner can tell how many miles in a gallon, but he may be wrong.
