Labor Just as Bad As the Capitalists.

One of the speakers at the Labor meeting on Saturday night was anything but fair in dealing with the Liberal program of labor reforms which have been carried out during the last three or four years. Absolutely no credit was given for any effort to improve things. It was claimed that the Government was impelled only by the pressure of public opinion and every good thing done was made light of.

If a capitalistic newspaper had made similar remarks about a Socialist candidate, it would have been pointed to as another example of the unfairness of capitalism toward the working class. As a matter of fact human nature is just the same whether it wears overalls or swallowtail evening clothes. Both get so enthused with their own cause that they fail to recognize any merit in the opponent. Mention is made of this particularly because it is the extreme labor party that is always calling down others for doing just what was so grossly done on Saturday night by Mr. Ellis.

Public Opinion is Powerful Factor.

Under a democratic system of government, public opinion is the guiding factor. The Liberal party recognizes this and tries to carry out the wishes of the people as expressed at the polls. It may not always succeed in everything, but it makes a very good attempt and carries into legislation the wishes of the majority.

Socialists are trying to reform public opinion so as to secure a new system, an unworkable system, a system of which they know nothing themselves except in theory. Mr. Burroughs is the exponent of that system. He is enthused with his subject and apparently sees the millennium of Socialism right ahead.

Twenty years ago there were enthusiasts preaching the same doctrine in the same way, and almost everyone of them had abandoned the scheme since as unworkable. It is a beautiful conception but takes no account of the frailties of human nature. It may be possible some day but if it is, it will be generations ahead. In the meantime much can be done in the way of bringing about a better condition of affairs. This is the Liberal way. Liberalism is evolutionary, whereas Socialism as expounded by Mr. Burroughs is revolutionary. The first is permanent in its effects and the second is not. No condition brought into being without the backing of public opinion and a long period of education can succeed.

Food, Clothes And Shelter.

Mr. Burroughs says all that working men get today is food, clothes and shelter. That is very nearly true of everyone in the world. These are the basic needs. Add to them the time and ability to study, sufficient recreation and there is an ideal condition. There are a few who get more efficient methods of transportation than others. There are some who economize on food, clothing and shelter and spend their money in other ways, and they are often classed as capitalists, just because they do that. Loggers come here from the islands and immediately proceed to "blow in" their earnings. Because they do this they are members of the working class. Others earning much less money prefer to invest it in a home or put by enough until they can purchase an automobile. They immediately become capitalists and are opposed by the spendthrifts who call themselves revolutionary Socialists. This is just one phase of this big question, but it is important. There are very few people in Prince Rupert who are not workers. Most of those who are not hard workers belong to the "working class."

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW IS DULL

Procession This Year Lacked Much of Pageantry of Former Years.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The historic procession of the newly-elected lord mayor of London, participated in by the dignitaries of the municipal corporation, wended its way through the streets of the metropolis, following the formal induction of Alderman James Roll into the office.

The ceremony lacked much of the customary pageantry, which had been curtailed in the plans for the ceremonial owing to conditions brought about by the recent coal strike. Nevertheless thousands of people crowded the streets to watch the parade.

The procession started from the Guildhall with the lord mayor occupying the antiquated, gilded coach of state, attended by gorgeously liveried servants and preceded by uniformed trumpeters. Other carriages contained the retiring lord mayor, Sir Edward E. Cooper, the sheriffs, aldermen and other city officials. The procession was interspersed with bands and detachments of troops.

The line of march took the procession past the ancient Tower of London, the Nelson Monument and St. Paul's Cathedral to the law courts where the customary official reception by the judges was held. After this the marchers returned to the Guildhall and dispersed. At night the customary banquet was held at the Guildhall where, in accordance with time-honored usage, the cabinet ministers were the chief guests. Premier Lloyd George delivered an address, following precedent by using the occasion to make important ministerial statements.

The Man in the Moon

SAYS—

THAT the difficulty with a Scotchman is he never seems to see a joke unless it's there.

THAT there are a lot of people looking for jobs. At least three are after the one held by the minister of lands.

THAT at last the coal barons are coming into the limelight again. Life will be worth living pretty soon if this develops. An election without a coal baron would be a tame affair.

THAT if the city were to acquire a wharf and the coal barons were to go out of business, what in the world would the independent Newton candidate have to campaign on?

THAT if we only knew as much about life as the telephone operators, living would be worth while.

THAT it pays to be nice to everyone but especially to a hullo girl.

THAT among the things that don't get you anywhere is trying to flirt with the telephone operator when she is on duty—when she is on duty, mind—or flying off the handle if she does not answer promptly.

THAT if you want to be on the right line, speak promptly and clearly. The girl at the other end is doing her best.

THAT if you want to stand in well at Central, go up to the Athletic Hall and root for the Telephone basketball team on the opening night.

THAT a man is like a motor-boat. He gets out of kilter just when you are expecting most from him.

THAT humor is the salt of life, which accounts for the salty flavor of things since the election campaign commenced.

THAT when a little man tries to attract attention he has to abuse everybody. See election campaign material of the midgets.

THAT the latest disease is "candiditis." It afflicts some people in such a way as to make them want to run for office on every possible occasion. The person so afflicted becomes an office seeker.

THAT "let the office seek the man," once was a good motto. But it seems to be a bit old-fashioned.

Zam-Buk, however, ended the discharge and soothed my skin wonderfully. It drew out all inflammation and cleared every trace of disease."

BABY'S FACE SORES. Mrs. C. B. Hitey, Riverport, N.S., says: "My baby had sores on her face caused by teething. Although I tried numerous salves and ointments nothing would heal them.
