Better Exhibition In Coming Year.

Judging from the tone of the annual meeting of the exhibition association last night, the fair should be bigger and better next year than last. The directors were all new to the game on the last occasion. Now they have had some experience and there is some new blood that should strengthen it.

The suggestion at the meeting that all the concessions should be on the hill and not in the streets seemed to meet with general approbation and an attempt will be made to centre everything at and around the Exhibition Building, if the will of the membership is carried out.

Three Principles To Be Followed.

There is nothing particularly new in regard to the suggestions made for the improvement of the fair. The ability to carry out the suggestions is the only difficulty. In the first place there must be more local exhibits. If the local people are not sufficiently interested to place exhibits, how can it be expected that outsiders will come here.

The next suggestion is that outsiders shall be induced to co-operate. There are two or three methods of securing this. First they must be shown that Prince Rupert people are interested in them and that their exhibits are desired; they must be shown that it is to the advantage of their districts that exhibits be made here. It must also be shown them that care will be taken of their exhibits and that every possible facility will be given in the matter of placing the exhibits.

The bigger and better the fair, the more value it will be to the exhibitor, the more people will attend and the better financial results will be obtained.

Induce Natives to Interest Themselves.

Last year the native exhibits were the subject of much favorable comment. They put to shame some of the other entries. The visitors from the Island and other points were enthused over the reception they got and it is promised that there will be much keener competition next year. This is a feature that should not be neglected. Prince Rupert is the recognized holiday centre for the employees of the fisheries and others in September, and the good work which has been commenced in this line should be continued and developed so that the whole countryside will look to this city at fair time for a holiday outing.

Last year there were no complaints, as in former years, in regard to housing. The chief difficulty is one of transportation, but with the development of the district resources will come population, and population will bring transportation. It is impossible to have transportation which is unprofitable.

See That Everybody Is Doing Work.

The old idea of fair organization was that a few of the directors should do all the work. The new idea is that the directors will organize the work and keep everything moving.

Take the department of women's needle work and the school exhibits as examples. These, as well as the art departments, have had no encouragement of late. If a strong and energetic committee of women had charge of these departments, or two or three separate committees were formed and the directors kept in touch with them and their work, some beneficial results might follow. Sometimes a committee of one is best to handle a department. One woman can always do more than five. If a person understands that her personal honor is at stake in making a department a success, she will leave no stone unturned to get results.

What is true of women is also true, though perhaps to a lesser degree, of men. Small committees held responsible for departments, are the most likely to succeed. A big committee never does anything and never will.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west.

It is counted from 0 to 24 hours from midnight to midnight.

The table given is for Port Simpson but the time for Prince Rupert varies only a few minutes on some days and on others is the same. The range of the tide may be computed as 5 per cent greater at Prince Rupert than at Port Simpson both at springs and neaps. Therefore the rise in the Prince Rupert harbor is slightly greater than Port Simpson.

The height is in feet and tenths of feet above the average level of lower low water.

THOUSANDS PLAY
PUSH BALL IN LONDON CITY

Police Stop Game and Stab Great Balloon in Hyde Park

With the Marble Arch as one goal and Hyde Park Corner as the other, 1,000 students last night played a "rag" game of pushball, says the London Chronicle.

Their ball was 6 ft. in diameter and the "ground" was Ring Road, which runs parallel with Park Lane. On one side were the men from the Imperial College of Science and Technology and the opposing team were from the "United" Hospitals.

But the game was really triangular, as the police took an active part in the proceedings and scored the heaviest of all. They left the field as conquerors, wildly cheered by the students.

Defeated Students' Lament
 Broken up into little pieces, the defeated pushballers left the park shouting:

"What did Robert do to the pushball?"

"He knifed it!"

About five o'clock the monster ball was escorted from the Imperial College, and held aloft by scores of hands was accompanied by the other members of the team, 600 strong.

A one-armed banner bearer waved a large mock college flag. All along the route crowds gathered, laughing and cheering as the processionists swung by to the usual marching songs.

Police came rushing up and there was a parley with the leaders, without, however, any stoppage of the procession. One answer an inspector got was "We are out to play the United Hospitals in Hyde Park and to Hyde Park we're going. Come with us and see the fun."

Knifed!

Hardly had the pushball been dropped within the park when the police became actively concerned in a great scum and the students were hard put to it withstanding the tremendous pressure from the comparatively small, but compact and brawny body of constables, determined to reach the offending ball.

Many students went down in the struggle as the police pushed their way in.

Millionaires came out on their balconies to watch the game and the excitement was intense and terrific the noise of shouted college cries.

But the defenders were too much for the police as a body.

One policeman detached himself from his fellows and for one brief moment found himself right against the ball.

It was enough. Up went his right hand, down came his jack-knife—and that pushball was soon the most deflated thing in London.

But the British never know when they are beaten and the students of both teams fought among themselves for the leather and in the end the Imperial men succeeded in scoring a goal through the Marble Arch.
