DAILY EDITION.

And in These Days Labor Shall Hire Capital.

An interesting forecast was made recently by Sir George Paish, the noted British economist, while lecturing in London when he said he looked forward to the time when the working people would be their own masters and when capital would be hired by labor and not labor by capital. And in this statement, Sir George opened up a pretty field for speculation, and under given conditions he saw no reason why the experiments already being made in some small measure should not be entirely successful. Taking them the world round, the working classes have never had so much money before—to spend—or to save. Many have saved more recently than they ever did in previous years and now have a margin to subscribe to the capital fund.

Many People Prefer To Take Chances.

With possession of collateral, as security for capital, working men would also secure a low rate of interest. It would then be for the individual to decide whether to hire capital and take the risk of a loss—or mayhap profit—or else remain with a fixed and definite wage. Sir George Paish was of the opinion that most people would prefer to take the risk of making a profit. That was the way of human nature.

Interest First, Wages Second.

Under these circumstances, interest on the capital would be the first charge on the industry even before wages. The interest would have to be paid first, in order to secure more capital, by the use of which the payment of the wages would be made possible. An alliance with the professional classes was suggested by Sir George—with the men who knew how to manage, which is what everyone does not know. Meantime the alliance is between capital and the professions, and although with the growth of the labor movement, this will gradually be swung about as labor finds that it needs experts in their own lines in big management.

Progress of Country

Reflected in Railway Returns.

The general increase of traffic, both passenger and freight, over the lines of the G. T. P. for the past year is symptomatic of the conditions of that part of British Columbia through which the line passes. The increase in business is decided and progressive and shows a steady acceleration. With a succeeding increase in the same ratio even, which the real figures will doubtless exceed, for 1920, a definite place in the order of things although already established, will be proven to those doubting, for the central portion of British Columbia. Already there are thirty-one sawmills operating along the line of the railway between the coast and the Alberta boundary, of which twenty are contiguous to Prince Rupert. Already the premier fishing port of the Pacific and the centre of the richest mining district on the continent, the optimism which has held up her population since the city was established is thoroughly justified.
