HERRING FISHING AT CAPTAIN'S COVE

Are Trying Out the Pounding Scheme—1,000 Tons Objective

The herring fishing is going along steadily at present and the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. has already bought 100 tons for bait purposes from Don Yelf and Jack Bradbury who are operating two boats, the Navigator and Reveille, at Captain's Cove, 40 miles south of here on Pitt Island in Ogden Channel. Purse seines are being used with good success and the objective is 1,000 tons.

The herring fishing will continue until the end of May when the boats will start fishing for spring salmon. Messrs. Yelf and Bradbury have twelve men employed at Captain's Cove. The herring, it is expected, will sell for about $25 a ton. A much talked of scheme, the pounding or trapping of herring, is being tried out but as yet none of the fish caught in this manner has been brought in. By this method the nets are stretched across the mouth of the cove and the fish are thus trapped and gathered up. It is a much simpler method to that used by Indians and others in trapping the run of spawning salmon going up streams in the late summer. Messrs. Bradbury and Yelf are going ahead with the scheme and consider it will be successful.
