JUDGE ROBSON IS IMPRESSED WITH RUPERT

Present Economic Condition is Only Healthy One, He Maintains:

Judge H. A. Robson, accompanied by Mrs. Robson and A. T. Broderick, the local manager of the Union Bank, spent the day yesterday visiting the various scenes of industry in the city and also took the opportunity to see the scenic beauties of the place. The judge was especially impressed with the work going on at the Prince Rupert Spruce Mills and the Cold Storage plant which were visited in the morning. He left the city convinced of its prosperity and progress and hopes to pay another visit to the district when the full activity of the summer is on.

Judge Robson, who recently resigned from the arduous duties connected with the chairmanship of the Board of Commerce, was asked as to the economic situation of Canada today. "This is a very hard question to speak upon," he said. "The high prices will not come down till the production of manufactured articles exceeds the demand. This country, especially Western Canada, is a progressive country and for that reason the demands are very great and it is a hard thing for production to catch up. The demand, despite the high costs, shows a healthy economic condition in the country."

Judge and Mrs. Robson returned to their home in Winnipeg this morning.

PROGRESS AT DRY DOCK IS CONSIDERED GOOD

Marine Men Who Visited the City State that Ships Will Soon Take Shape.

W. A. Wallace, representing the British Ship Corporation surveyors, John Whitehead of Lloyds and R. Pemberton during their recent visit in town visited the scene of activities at the dry dock. The officials were well satisfied with the progress there. Though the two ships under construction there have as yet assumed no large proportions the fact is emphasized that the material is almost ready and when assembled the ships will quickly take shape. The plant at the present time is working at a disadvantage due to the fact that the management is in question. When the tangle is straightened out it is very likely that the plant may secure further contracts for the building of ships.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:

THAT isn't it time to talk about the weather?

THAT the picture at the show last night is the next most popular theme of conversation.

THAT we talk about the weather because we want to talk.

THAT it would be an original idea to open up first on the League of Nations or the new Franchise Act or Alderman Perry's letter.

THAT since the spiritualist seances have started, the young ladies have to burn the light all night for fear they might see something in the dark.

THAT it is reported that some of them sleep with their heads under the clothes.

THAT most of the young men around town are afraid to visit the medium for fear she may tell things about them.

THAT it is extremely uncomfortable to have people around who know too much.

THAT it is said the only thing some of the folks like is the holding hands.

THAT there is nothing spooky about that.

THAT some people aver that they are not afraid to hold hands in the dark at any time if it is the right sort of hand.

Bert Manthrop, steamboat inspector, returned to Victoria on the Princess Mary last night after having inspected the Prince George and the two ships under construction at the dry dock.
