SAVE YOUR SIGHT

YESIGHT—The most valuable of all the senses—is the most neglected and the least understood. Suffer from ill, which, upon examination, can be traced directly to defective eyesight.

The removal of the cause will often restore the delicate and down sufferer to robust health. Glasses are properly prescribed to restore the vision to normal and eliminate all eye strain.

DISCUSSES PENSIONS

C. W. Peck Makes Short Speech in House in Regard to Subject.

C. W. Peck, member for this district in the House of Commons, made a short speech in the House of Commons recently on a motion to amend the Pensions Act to make the allowance to soldiers' widows stable. As reported in Hansard, he said:—

"I rise to support the motion, as I have risen repeatedly in this House to express my sympathy with the mothers and widows of men who served their country in the late struggle. I shall not delay the House at this time with any lengthy discussion of the question, because I think that enough has been said. I am convinced that the Government have not closed the door upon any questions appertaining to the returned soldiers, and I think my hon. friend the Minister of Immigration (Mr. Calder) has expressed that determination. I have no doubt the time will come when the Government will appreciate the advisability of affording to this House an opportunity to discuss the subject from all possible standpoints. If, however, they do not grant that opportunity, then we shall bring the matter up in some other manner. I am sure they will give us a chance to go thoroughly into the question, for as I said before, and said advisedly, I rely on this Government to do everything humanly possible on behalf of the soldiers and the widowed mothers.

I do not see within sight any other prospective Government that will be willing to do any more than this Government has done or can do. The very first question in regard to the soldiers should be that of pensions. I made this statement in my constituency; that the widows and orphans of the men, our comrades, who were left over on the battlefields of France and Flanders, should be given first consideration. I will not recite the case which I have in mind, but I may assure the House that there are many which should receive every consideration. I think the whole subject could be more advantageously discussed at a later date; and, as I have said before, I am convinced that the Government will grant an opportunity to discuss the question of pensions. We shall, therefore await with anxiety their decision on the question, and if they can not grant ample opportunity to go into the matter then I shall take steps to bring it before the House."

Chet Neff at his nightly training practices at the Trail Club is already drawing crowds of fans. Seen last night by the News he appears to be in the pink of condition and very fast. Harry Anderson will have to show a lot of speed to match him. He is practising with a number of local men who do not take any chances on getting too close.

An alleged "fixed" hockey game between the Victoria Colonist and the Times proved quite a comedy at the capital city last week. It was reported in the Victoria papers that the players spent most of the time sitting on the ice and when one went down he made it a duet by taking another man with him. Some of the best of the players were able to stand up on skates and anything from throwing the puck to putting it in their pockets and carrying to the goal characterized the fine points of the exhibition. The goal keeper prevented goals by sitting on the ice and endeavoring to catch the pellet. At one critical moment when the puck was approaching threateningly the goalie picked up the goal and carried it to a safe part of the rink.

"Moving picture making is just like boxing only a little rougher," says Bennie Leonard. The most noticeable possible difference between the two is that in boxing you don't even have to muss your hair. Yes, I never had my hair mussed in the ring since becoming champion and not for a long time before that. And I've been thrown around enough too. I tell you these movie boys are rough especially the extras. Once in a while in a melodramatic scene I get knocked over by a couple of dozen crooks and I come up angry. Unless they're kidding me I think I have a chance to become a success at this game. I'll be twenty-four next birthday and that's not too old to learn. Anyway, I'm going to try."

Miller Huggins, manager of the Boston Red Sox, had a few wretched moments one day last week for "Babe" Ruth nearly sprained his ankle. The Boston husky walked in the second inning of a practice game and at once broke out in a dash for second base. He slid into the bag with a distinctly elephantine grace, but his foot caught and he got up limping and calling for time. Miller Huggins lost no time in dashing out from the players' bench to examine his prize-winner's ankle. It was nothing serious, however, and the game went merrily on.

How to make your old suit last

"It is not every man that can afford to wear a shabby coat," Robert Colton once wrote.

The words hold as true now as when first written, three-quarters of a century ago.

Nevertheless it is needful today to make the old suit last—though not at the expense of becoming tattered.

Between the costliness of clothing at the one extreme, and shabbiness of them at the other, there is a middle ground where economy and good appearance meet.

Our modern dry cleaning establishment is this middle ground. Here our experienced cleaners can tune up your old clothes and preserve your new.

Every person realizes the business advantage and the social value of clothes well cleaned and neatly pressed, but there is more in these details than improvement of "looks" alone.

Ask your tailor or your clothier. They will inform you that apparel frequently pressed, and cleaned at intervals of two or three months, will wear from 25 to 50 per cent longer than clothes that are not so considerably cared for.

There is a sound reason for this.

You wash your linen when it becomes soiled—it is a matter of self-respect and personal hygiene, of course, but it is also true that if left unwashed your shirts would wear out much more quickly.

Perspiration, oils, grease, and fruit juices have a corrosive effect; dust and dirt have a grinding action—your outer clothing needs purging of these equally as much as does your linen.

The cleansing gasoline baths used in our dry cleaning process, and the pressing of the presser, with hot steam working through the fabric, have a sterilizing action—your apparel is made, by our scientific treatment of each garment, as immaculate outside as inside, it keeps its shaper better, and is saved from tell-tale shininess.

Your old suit will last longer, and your new suit will do double duty if you will more frequently use our modern cleaning and pressing service, which is specially organized to meet your individual needs.

Get started on the road to clothes economy. We offer you prompt delivery and all the advantages of our up-to-the-minute dry cleaning methods. Telephone us today.
