Canadian Succeeds to Position vacated by Sir Ian MacPherson; No Sign of Easter Trouble in Emerald Isle.

(Special to The News via G. T. P. Telegraphs.)
LONDON, April 3.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, under secretary of state for the colonies, has been appointed chief secretary of state for Ireland according to an official announcement this afternoon. He succeeds Sir Ian MacPherson, who resigned yesterday.
DUBLIN, April 3.—The situation in Dublin today was normal. There was not the slightest sign of any Easter rising, rumors circulating the possibility of which recently became so general as to provoke questions on the subject in Parliament.
The resignation of Sir James Ian MacPherson as chief secretary of state for Ireland did not cause a ripple of excitement here. Irishmen regard the resignation of the viceroy, as solely responsible for the direction of affairs and seem not to be interested in MacPherson's successor.
Hamar Greenwood is a Canadian and has made a number of visits to Canada since entering politics here. He was for some time private secretary to Winston Churchill before getting an appointment.

Captain Roberson was on the John and it was his skiff that landed the John on the beach instead of allowing it to sink in deep water. He had the engines going and pushed the John broadside for an hour and a half and all the time he was taking water and dragging the Albert down. Marine generally praise the work of the captain.

An Easter Message to People From Archbishop Du Vernet

SORROW TURNED INTO JOY

The message of Easter brings home to us the truth that while the good may be for a brief season crushed and buried, it will inevitably rise again.
We have learnt the lesson about the physical law of the conservation of energy. We know that physical energy may be changed from one form to another form, but it can never be lost.
We need now to learn by heart the lesson about the moral law of the conservation of value. What is good in a spiritual sense may be changed from one form to another, but it can never be lost. It will rise again.
If we have any sympathy with higher things, when in the conflict of life we see the good apparently defeated, sorrow will cut down in the prime of life, but if we wait in faith our sorrow will be turned into joy.
Evil is destructive. It tears apart. It pulls down. Therefore in the end it must destroy itself. Good is productive. It increases good. It may be stamped down by the power of evil but it must rise again, for it has within it the germ of eternal life.
This law of the conservation of value pervades the whole universe, but it finds its highest revelation in Christ.
The forces of evil thought that they had crushed and buried this wonderful being who so embodied goodness, but He rose again a still more wonderful person in the power of His Universal Spirit.
In preparing His followers for this great transformation Christ said: "A little while, and ye behold Me outwardly no more. Again, a little while, and ye shall see Me with spiritual vision."
The Crucified Christ becomes the Risen Christ, Who by the power of His Spirit of Love will yet conquer the world, and establish upon earth the Commonwealth of Righteousness.
With this vision of faith He could well say to His bewildered followers facing the Cross: "Ye shall be sorrowful but your sorrow shall be turned into joy."
F. H. DU VERNET,
Archbishop of Caledonia.
