SAVE MOTHER AT EXPENSE OF CHILD

Action of Physicians Upheld by Coroner at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The action of five physicians who resigned from the faculty of Marquette University at Milwaukee because they disagreed with Father H. C. Noonan, head of the school, on the question of whether a mother's life should be saved at the cost of her unborn child, was upheld here by Coroner Peter M. Hoffman.

Hoffman was coroner when the late Dr. Harry J. Haiselden allowed a baby to die rather than let it live a defective. Hoffman charged Haiselden's act was "murder."

"I would say we have hundreds of cases in Chicago where the mother's life is saved at the cost of the child's," said Hoffman, "and I believe it perfectly justified.

"I think that when a mother's life is in danger and a sacrifice should be made either way, the sacrifice should be made for the mother, because she may bring more children into the world and is needed to raise her other children, the children she may already have.

"To let the child live and the mother die does not give progress to the world. The necessity of the mother is more important than the child."

Members of the American Medical Association said the question was an individual one and not for the association.

"It is a question which has been discussed for years, but which has never been settled," said one of the association. "The question is not one of medicine, but of morals."

$25,000 DAMAGES FOR TACK IN SOUP

Dr. Spitzer Sues Restaurant and Wins Case in Supreme Court.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A verdict of $25,000 damages caused by a tack in a bowl of soup was awarded to Dr. Moritz D. Spitzer, 225 East 14th street, in his suit against the Childs Restaurant Company. The verdict was given in Justice Finch's part of the Supreme Court.

The evidence showed that Dr. Spitzer ate the soup in a Childs restaurant at No. 42 East 14th street on December 28, 1915, and that the tack is still in his abdomen. Two of the witnesses were in France during the war, and their testimony was not available until now.

Dr. Spitzer said he first felt a tack in his gums, then a sharp pain in his throat as he swallowed. He found another tack still in the plate of soup, he said, and showed it to the manager of the restaurant, who was at a loss to explain it. X-ray photographs, showing the tack in the abdomen, were part of the evidence.

Physicians said the tack might remain for years without doing any harm, but might at any time necessitate a serious and possibly fatal operation.

INCREASED RATES FOR ADVERTISING

The continuous increase in the costs of production, both in wages and material, has made it necessary for the advertising rates charged by the Daily News to be revised, and the new rates will take effect after this issue. From now on, transient display advertising will cost $1.25 per inch per insertion, and if required on the front page, $2.00 per inch. Reading notices will be charged at 25c per line per insertion and classified advertisements 2c per word. The rates on the other particular classes of advertising are shown on the new rate card, which may be had upon application.

FUR TRADER FROM ALASKA ARRIVES AT PORT OF SEATTLE

Completes 3,000 Mile Trip by Dog Team Before Going South.

SEATTLE, May 12.—George R. Goshaw, the well-known Alaska fur trader and buyer, who operates on an extensive scale, arrived one day this week, coming by steamer from Seward, Alaska. Upon arrival at Anchorage, Mr. Goshaw completed a 3,000-mile trip by dog team, which he accomplished during the past winter, and which took him as far north as Kotzebue Sound, near the Arctic Ocean, and as far south as Nelson Island, southwestern Alaska. Covering the western coast line of Alaska, in quest of furs, Mr. Goshaw headed for the upper Kuskokwim country and from thence via Rainey pass to the Cook Inlet country, and on to Anchorage and Seward.

Upon arrival at Seattle, Mr. Goshaw found a letter awaiting him from Mr. Porter, a big New York fur man, which filled him with delight. Chas. E. Brown, of the firm of Brown & Hawkins, had been in New York and took occasion to call on Mr. Porter. Mr. Brown gave his old friend Goshaw a great sendoff to Mr. Porter, and the latter was so pleased with the high recommendation which the big Alaska merchant gave his associate in the fur business, that he wrote Goshaw an extendel letter about it. Mr. Goshaw departed yesterday, en route to New York, but expects to return to Alaska in the near future.

Mr. Goshaw said that the Treadwell interests had taken an option on all the gold quartz claims located late last fall on Nixon's fork, in the upper Kuskokwim country, and were preparing for extensive development work this season. The Treadwell people have a mining engineer named Werneke in there now who will have charge of the development work.

VICTORIA GERMAN IS MINUS ONE BOAT

Is Interned at Vernon and While Away His Launch Disappears.

Frederick Kohse used to be a waiter at the Empress Hotel, Victoria. Then he went into the business of making boats and launches. War broke out, and Kohse, being a German, decided Victoria was not a good place in which to live. He and his family oiled in his largest launch, the Empress IX., and headed north, seeking seclusion.

In those days every German was a potential spy. Rumors flew about that Kohse had set out to signal German warships lurking off Cape Flattery. The military authorities chased him and ran him down, finally seized his boat and interned him at Vernon. Finding no trace of an alleged wireless apparatus on the boat, they returned the craft to him, and he ordered it anchored in Victoria Harbor until his release.

Not until after the armistice was declared was Kohse given his freedom. He came to Victoria, looking for Empress IX. It was gone. He investigated, without success. Then Frederick Winterbourne, who has been operating a launch in the Gulf trade for quite a while, cruised into the harbor. Kohse saw him and recognizing the launch, notified his lawyer, Frank Higgins, K.C., and then waited. The boat has now been identified as Empress IX., and it is in the sheriff's possession. Winterbourne claims he bought the boat from an inner harbor launch agent. The case will be thrashed out in the Supreme Court and meantime Kohse must find a new vocation for the time being.
