SINCE 1870 SHILOH 30 DROPS STOPS COUGHS

NO CRITICISM FROM CIVIL SERVANTS, SAYS PREMIER JOHN OLIVER

A stinging rebuke has been sent by Premier Oliver to Agent-General F. C. Wade consequent upon the latter's recent letter to the local press criticising J. S. Cowper, M. P. P., for statements made by the latter at the recent session of the Legislature when the vote for the maintenance and upkeep of British Columbia House, the London headquarters of the Agent-General, was under consideration and Mr. Cowper urged steps should be taken to do away with the expensive premises owned by the Government there.

Mr. Wade took umbrage at Mr. Cowper's statement that the latter, when in London last year, had seen no one in British Columbia House in the morning and in the afternoon there was one man reading a newspaper. Mr. Wade's letter to the local press criticized Mr. Cowper for his statements, claiming the latter was seeking to make it appear there was little work in the London office, asserting that good work is being done and concluding with the statement: "If the visitor had been anyone but Mr. Cowper, even a charitable person might suggest that he was engaged in that edifying and delectable pursuit commonly called eavesdropping."

When the matter was brought to the attention of the Premier he promptly sat down and dictated a sharp letter to the Agent-General, pointing out that the Government would not permit civil servants to criticize members of the Legislature.

"I have written to Mr. Wade, making it clear that I thoroughly disapprove of officials of the Government criticizing members" stated Premier Oliver. "What kind of conditions are we going to have if every civil servant adopts such a course. I consider this a glaring case and I won't stand for it," asserted the Premier, with emphasis.

DISCOURTESIES TO THE ROYAL FAMILY

Irish People Take This Method of Proteting Against Imprisonment Without Trial

LONDON, May 29.—The Sinn Feiners apparently are developing plans similar to those followed by suffragettes in pre-war days—giving annoyance to the Royal family. Recently when Queen Mary attended a charity concert, two Irish women on the Reception Committee appointed to receive refrained from courtesying upon her Majesty's arrival. The Queen took no notice, assuming that the discourtesy was unintentional and due to a lack of knowledge of court etiquette. Subsequently one woman wrote to the Queen that she had deliberately refused to courtesy as a protest against the retention in jail of untried Irish prisoners.

A similar incident occurred on Saturday when King George took afternoon tea at the Naval Military Club. An Irish officer did not rise when the King entered the room. This was so noticeable that the King's equerry interrogated the Captain, who said it was a protest against the keeping in jail of untried Irish prisoners. Upon learning the reason, His Majesty had the officer informed that he had nothing to do with the action of the Executive Government, nor was he able to interfere. The Captain thereupon rose and apologized.

Such incidents have been of frequent occurrence lately, and extra precautions are being taken to prevent similar demonstrations at forthcoming court functions.

ATTACKS TRAIN

Lord Dewar told big game hunting stories to a delighted audience of boys at the County Secondary School, Purley. He said he had just returned from Africa, where he was a farmer in Uganda. A rhinoceros charged a train and nearly derailed it. On another occasion the train was stopped to release a large giraffe entangled in the telegraph wires. Nairobi, with its motor-cars, electric light and telephone service, surprised the visitor, but it was situated in a huge zoological garden, and it was not safe for any domestic animal to be at large at night.

With such promising week-end weather many fishing trips are being planned and, despite church objections, it seems that pools in Shawatlans, Woodworth, Lost Lake and McNicholl Creek and even more distant points will be well patronized tomorrow.
