Sockeye Fishing Begins Tomorrow Evening at Six:

For Some Days Fish have been Seen Jumping in the Skeena and it is Anticipated that Fishing

may be good

The sockeye fishing season opens in the north tomorrow, Sunday, evening at six o'clock and once more the boats will be busy on the Skeena and Naas rivers and at Rivers Inlet. Tomorrow afternoon a string of boats from the Prince Rupert cannery will go out to the river and the canning plants will all be busy.

The prospects for fishing on the Skeena seem fairly good, although this is not expected to be a big year. Four years ago the spawning grounds were not very well seeded and for that reason this should be a slim season for sockeye. For some days past, however, fish having been yesterday were seen jumping.

Fishing is likely to commence a few days later at the Naas and on Rivers Inlet as the sockeye are rather later at those points. Usually at Rivers Inlet the boats; go out about the 25th or 26th and possibly a day or two earlier than that at the Naas.

Trolling for spring salmon on Receives the Skeena has not been very good this year, but on the Naas there have been excellent catches. As soon as the herring begin to run at Dundas Island and at War Channel the springs will come in and the catches will improve. The spring salmon seem to follow
