Liquor Theft Case Being Tried Today

Evidence for Prosecution in the Trial of Simon Duff heard before Chief Justice Hunter at Assizes This Morning

This morning the Assizes opened with Chief Justice Hunter on the bench and W. E. Fisher as crown prosecutor, Stuart Henderson appearing for the defendant in the Simon V. Duff case. A telegram was read by W. E. Fisher stating that Richard Leahy, who is indicted with Duff, is still in Okalla Farm but could be sent up on request by Saturday's boat. Mr. Fisher said it must have been an oversight on the part of the attorney-general. As both men were indicted together, he thought the two should be present. The accused were to be tried jointly and he felt that they might be prejudiced if heard coparately. He asked for an adjournment to Monday or Satur;

day. Stuart Henderson as counsel for Duff, said it was no fault of the defence that Leahy was not here. They had arranged to should proceed at once. Mr. Fish- printed on the green paper which er interposed that the evidence was pasted to the side of one of
