CATHOLIC SCHOOL PICNIC YESTERDAY

Pleasant Time Spent at Digby Island Yesterday.

At the Catholic School picnic at Digby Island yesterday afternoon one little tot was unfortunate enough to fall into the water near the landing float. A piece of kelp attracted her attention and as she bent down to pick it up, pitched forward into the cold water. This was the only incident that marred a very pleasant picnic for both parents and children alike.

During the course of the afternoon there were races and other attractions. About six o'clock the first weary ones returned as a heavy drizzling rain had set in.

WOMEN MANAGERS IN LONDON THEATRES

Seven or Eight Leading Playhouses Pass into Control of "Weaker" Sex.

In the world of the theatre, as in other worlds, power seems to be passing from man to woman, says the London Times. New actress-managers are coming along in zeal and energy, so that in a few weeks seven or eight theatres will be under feminine control. Miss Rosa Lynd has the Comedy Theatre, Miss Daisy Markham is to have the St. James. The number is brought up by Miss Viola Tree at the Aldwych, Miss Constance Collier at the Court, Miss Marie Lohr at the Globe, Miss Edyth Goodall at the Kingsway, Miss Gertrude Elliott at the Strand, and Miss Gladys Cooper (as soon as her health allows) at the Playhouse. Miss Markham will present a version of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," most ingenious of detective stories. Miss Lohr is reviving that pleasant adaptation of Sydney Grundy's "A Marriage of Convenience." In the near future Mrs. Patrick Campbell will appear as Georges Sand in a new play of which the characters include Heine, Chopin, Liszt, and Alfred de Musset.
