DOING BUSINESS IN LONDONDERRY

Searchlights Used to Locate Those Who Fire on Troops.

LONDONDERRY, June 26.—The British troops are bringing to an end the warfare between the Unionists and Sinn Feiners in this city. Snipers alone are active. The people are out again and the banks and shops are doing business once more.

Overnight the Sinn Feiners fired on the troops but destroyers' searchlights were used to locate the aggressors.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. PARKS

Members of Inlander Mess Mark Occasion of Recent Marriage in Substantial Manner.

A presentation was made last night by the members of the Inlander Mess to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Parks of Taylor Street, whose marriage took place recently. Mrs. Parks was formerly Miss Margaret Musgrave and was a member of the Inlander staff. Mr. Parks is a city fireman.

A number of the members of the mess visited the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Parks last night, taking with them a pretty centre table, an easy chair and a small silver tea set. In making the presentation the spokesman for the party said they felt they could not allow such an auspicious occasion to pass without showing their appreciation of the past services of Mrs. Parks and expressing in some tangible way their good will toward both the young people.

Suitable replies were made by both the recipients and a most enjoyable evening was spent, refreshments being provided by the host and hostess before the party broke up.

The Man in the Moon SAYS--

THAT there are a variety of voices heard among our friends.

THAT while some have a musical voice which soothes and sends us to sleep, others have a real jazz voice with all the traps.

THAT the difference between being married and single is that a single man has to give in when he is wrong, but a married man has to give in whether he is right or wrong.

THAT Greece was given a free hand with the Turks and she went out at once and captured eight thousand of them.

THAT Greece is all right in its place.

THAT there is not even a corpse to bury following the decease of the late Board of Commerce.

THAT politicians are still talking about Borden resigning, but he hates to do it.

THAT he loves his country so much he fears she may bust all to smithereens if he were to let go that salary.

THAT it is curious how many men are willing to become leaders even of such a moribund party.

THAT complaints have been made to the editor regarding parties returning home late disturbing the rest of the community.

THAT rest is right. That is what the community does.

THAT of course it might be as well if the young people would give vent to their hilarity before going on the streets and then hold themselves in for a little while.

THAT this has no reference to any particular party but to young men in general who come home after midnight.

THAT it is all right to feel happy, but not too happy.

THAT the Mennonites are to leave Canada.

THAT nobody would worry if they took the Doukhobors with them.

THAT any community that cannot become Canadian and assimilate with the rest of the people is better across the border.
