SIR RICHARD McBRIDE AND THE DISCARDER SUBMARINES (Continued From Page One.)

the colic, but that is neither here nor there. A bargain is a bargain and must be snapped up when you can get it. A bargain is very much like a gift horse—you mustn't look it in the mouth. Sir Richard didn't and never will. Take it or leave it—that's Sir Richard's policy and see where British Columbia is now.

Considering the beautiful window-dressing he did at Ottawa, it is hard to understand why Sir Richard should have been so peevish when subsequently interviewed by the Globe in Toronto. It couldn't have been the submarines which he had explained to his own satisfaction—brushing them aside, so to speak, just like that. It must have been local conditions in British Columbia which caused him to speak of political opponents as "liars" and talk of suing if they didn't shut up. The change undergone by this debonair and gallant young knight between Ottawa and Toronto can only be explained by the fact that Toronto is two hundred and fifty miles nearer home than the other place.

Sir Richard talked like a man who feels that the rapids are near and the daylight is past; like one who was coming to his own and expected his own to receive him not; like a Prime Minister, in short, who was apprehensive that his old side-kick, Attorney-General Bowser, would be waiting for him with a club. It was a strange, savage way for a successful young statesman to talk, especially when approaching his home country, and the province which has enjoyed all the blessings of his promissory-note-hand-it-out-to-the-railways government for the last ten years. One would almost think that he wasn't sure of his welcome. There may be something in that, too. Sir Richard is not in the first flush of triumph. His flush is a bobtail now and British Columbia is calling for a show-down. Consequently Sir Richard has been restless of late. Like Sir George Foster who found no rest for the soles of his feet until he lighted in North Toronto, and the Hon. Bob Rogers who is looking for a soft spot in Carlton County, Sir Richard is casting about for a new place to perch. Like Noah's dove, though perhaps more spotted, he is making inquiry where he will land after the deluge. For the last three or four years, Sir Richard has been as agile as a moving picture, skipping all over Canada and the Mother country in search of permanent lodgings. He is toying just now with the idea of being Agent-General for British Columbia in England. Not a bad idea at that.

Toying is one of the best things Sir Richard does. He toys as long as events or men will let him. About four years ago when British Columbia began to notice that toying was his long suit, he toyed with the idea of the Conservative leadership for the Dominion of Canada. But Leader Borden and a general election put a stop to that. Since then he has toyed ever and anon, especially when British Columbia got peevish, with the idea of a cabinet portfolio at Ottawa. But toying was as far as he got. Like the man who was kicked down stairs three times he came to the conclusion that they didn't want him in there. The general opinion seems to be that Sir Richard has gone as far as a head of hair will carry him and that from now on his progress will be backwards.—H.F. Gadsby.

- FACT HUNGER -

As children, our first demand is for nourishment; our second for facts.

All through life we go about searching for information.

We make a new acquaintance; but before we will accept him as a friend or invite him to our home we ask for facts about him.

We visit a foreign land; and from the moment we step across its border we are asking questions—searching for facts.

We are asked to try a new food product; isn't it instinctive with us to ask at once:

"Who makes this new article?"

"How is it made? what goes into it?"

"Is it worth the price charged for it?"

Facts—we are simply hungry for them.

Strange, isn't it, that we should so often have to search for them? Odd, that some manufacturers still withhold the facts about their product. Not always because they are facts to be ashamed of—for there are many worthy articles yet unadvertised.

But it will not be so much longer. The fact-hunger of the human race is becoming keener and keener. The more facts we get, the keener our relish for more of them.

Soon it will be impossible to sell a man or a woman anything until everything has been told about the goods that can be told through Advertising.

The public has discovered that Advertising tells much-needed facts—that, in fact, Advertising satisfies fact-hunger.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.
If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.
