AUGUST FOURTH

Wednesday, August 4th, is the first anniversary of the declaration of war between Britain and Germany, and throughout the Empire the British people will commemorate the occasion by demonstrating their firm determination to see the thing through to the end. Many had hoped that Prussianism would have been finally crushed before a year had passed, but the fact that it has not does not affect the British mind in the least. A year ago we set out to do something which humanity demanded, and if it takes ten years, or twenty years, and the last man and the last dollar, the end will be accomplished.

Lord Kitchener, at the outset, stated that the war would last for three years, and has since repeated his statement on several occasions. It is safe to suppose that the British War Secretary has good grounds for his belief, and, therefore, wise for us to make up our minds accordingly. If it is over sooner, so much the better, but one thing is certain—the war will be over only when Militarism has Prussian gone down to rise no more.

MANITOBA CONSERVATIVES

Having sent a whole flock of "scapegoats" into the wilderness bearing with them the burdens of their party's misdeeds, the Conservatices of Manitoba have met in convention to reorganize in view of an impending general election. The two obvious things to do were to wash their hands of the scandals which their leaders had perpetrated in the party's interests, and to adopt a platform of captivating planks on which to take their stand during the campaign, and they did them very thoroughly. Doubtless Sir Rodmond Roblin, Dr. Montague, Mr. Coldwell, and Mr. Rogers will feel indignant as well as humiliated at such treatment, but that matters little now; they are all down and out except Mr. Rogers, and he may have to follow his old associates before very long.

natural sequel of a long line cago.-Ex. of maladministration, which was just as rampant when Mr. Rogers was the real leader of the party as it was after his translation to Ottawa. It was always his boast, and he frankly repeated it on the floor of the House of Commons, that he knew how to "carry elections." So long as he could do this the Conservatives in the Legislative Assembly were willing to stand by him, and so far as the general public knew the Conservatives outside of it tacitly endorsed him. Their silence when they could have spoken with effect will be one of the grounds of judgment against them now. - Toronto Globe.
