THE PURGING PROCESS IN THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

campaign purposes of the Roblin government. It transpired, too, that the Roblin government, being in a desperate hurry to get a campaign fund for the election of 1914, let the contract to Kelly for the construction of the dome for $802,000, a figure so outrageous that the perpetrators had to steal papers from the lieutenant-governor's office and mutilate the records of the privy council to give it a presentable coloring.

These were the net results of the Mathers commission. The Perdue commission, which was appointed to inquire into the charges made by Lawyer Fullerton to the effect that the Liberals were to take over the government and stifle the parliament building scandal, came to an impotent conclusion. The fact seems to be that an enthusiastic Liberal worker named Chambers listened to the time-worn proposition that there should be a saw-off of election protests, and was given $25,000, which must have come from Kelly, to defray legal expenses. As soon as Chambers discovered that the money had a more sinister purpose, he hustled it back and was mighty glad to wash his hands of it. Premier Norris knew nothing of Chambers' indiscretion and did not countenance his over-zeal.

The process of purging is still going on in the Conservative party in Manitoba. Kelly has purged himself out of the country. Dr. Simpson, who kept the party strong box, has been absent for a long time on overseas service. Dr. Montague, who was too sick two weeks ago to appear in court, and who has not practiced medicine for fifteen years, is to join the Army Medical Service at the front. Ex-Attorney-General Howden and G. R. Coldwell, formerly Minister of Education, whose evidence at a criminal trial might put both themselves and Kelly in wrong, are to be given overseas appointments. In short, patriotism is the last refuge and you all know what Dr. Samuel Johnson said about that.

The Conservative party is also looking for a new leader. Sir Hugh John Macdonald is said to have waved away the crown, that genial gentleman having had enough of public life ever since his famous father's justly celebrated nose and equally renowned necktie failed to land a victory for Sir Charles Tupper in 1900. Sir J. A. M. Aitkens—called Jam for short, because of the sweetness of his eloquence—is also mentioned. Sir James would not be a bad choice. He is capable and honest and rich enough to have ideals. It's a long road to a place in the Ottawa cabinet, especially now that R. B. Bennett, his old side partner, has become the travelling companion of Sir Robert Borden on his visit to England. The opinion grows that Premier Borden is grooming the brilliant young Calgary statesman for a cabinet job. If that is the case, Sir James may be satisfied with an ambition nearer home.
