WILL MAKE REPARATION IN ARABIC INCIDENT — INVADERS PREPARING FOR ARTILLERY ATTACK ON BREST — LITOVSK—FRENCH AVIATORS RAID A GERMAN GUN FACTORY

(Special to The Daily News.)

London, Aug. 26.—An inspired statement has been issued by Von Bethmann Hollweg that the Arabic incident has been eliminated, so far as Germany is concerned. Germany has designed a submarine policy for the future, so far as it affects Americans, which will prevent a repetition of the Lusitania incident.

If Germany finds that the submarine which torpedoed the Arabic acted contrary to orders, ample reparation will be made for American losses. Germany is anxious to maintain the friendship of America.

Russian Front.

The German invaders are slowly gaining the railroad system in Russia, bringing their artillery against Brest-Litovsk and Grodno. It is expected, in view of the Russian determination to entrench on their reformed line, that artillery will count for little.

Bombs on Gun Factory.

Paris, August 26.—Sixty-two French aviators dropped 150 bombs on a German gun factory at North Sarrelouis.

Western Front.

On the western front, artillery exchanges and hand grenade fighting are frequent.

RELATION OF BALKANS TO EASTERN BATTLE LINE

The relation of the Balkan States to the eastern arena is daily becoming more important. The map shows the eastern battle line, the fluctuations of which are being watched by the statesmen of the Balkan nations, whose entrance into the conflict on the Allies' side would be of great value as shown on the map.

THE ELECTION

The latest rumor predicts an election for Oct. 6. Judging by the strenuous efforts being put forth by the political engineers, this is probably within a week of the correct date. The old machine is carrying too big a load this trip.

PROFESSOR ADAM SHORTT ON ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

RAILROAD DEVELOPMENT OVERDONE — CANADA MUST GET DOWN TO PRODUCING NECESSITIES — GREAT HOPE FOR THIS COUNTRY AFTER THE WAR IS OVER

In the absence of Bishop Du Vernet, William Manson, M. L. A., presided over a gathering of 65 gentlemen at the Canadian Club luncheon in the Central Hotel yesterday. After lunch was served, and the toast to "The King" duly honored, the chairman called upon Professor Adam Shortt to deliver an address on "Present Day Economic conditions."

At the outset Dr. Shortt expressed great pleasure in having the opportunity of addressing such a gathering of Prince Rupert business men. He said he had always found it a great pleasure to speak at Canadian Club gatherings because of the fact that they embraced men of all shades of opinion, who were used to having men from all quarters expressing their own particular experiences, free from all restraint. His hearers could take away with them anything they felt to be true, or say, with Thomas Carlyle, after a fruitless search in a weighty volume, "That proves that there is nothing there."

"We are all interested in this terrific struggle," said Dr. Shortt, "and, most of us, in reading of some great world struggle, have speculated as to how it must have felt, and what an experience it must have been to have lived through such a period. Today we are passing through just such an experience. Never, at any time has so much of the world been involved. The destiny of the world is in the balance. No country has a deeper and more vital interest in the future than Canada, because it is the latest and last of the great areas open to the civilization of the northern races. The greatest changes and developments that are yet to come are on this continent, and on the northern half of it. We must confine our attention to the question of how the situation is going to affect our country in its economic development. All our other development hinges on that. There is no sharp contrast between the worship of culture and that of mammon. Both are related always."

Dr. Johnson said, "Men are seldom more innocently employed than when they are making money." Countries which are interested in other things than the making of money are generally a pretty wild and unstable lot. The greatest interest for us is the supply of capital. For the last fifteen years, this country has depended upon a steady flow of capital from London, the centre of the world's capital. That supply has been very severely curtailed, and was in process of curtailment before the war broke out. We must turn to the United States for capital for our municipal and business development.

Capital originates when a man has something over and above what he requires for his daily needs, and which he can hand over to someone else to use in some other line. That which is capital to one man immediately becomes the support of daily life to another. $50,000 expended in wages is capital, but as soon as it is paid over to the individual it ceases to be capital to him. If he can save any of it and turn it into some other investment it becomes capital again to the individual. The capital of a nation is not emasured by what it spends but by what it saves and turns back into channels of production.

To build railroads and cities, capital has flowed into Canada at the rate of over $300,000,000 per year for ten years, providing a free element from which we could draw. As this capital has been lent to us as a basis for earning power, we must look to the repaying of principal and interest. It is, therefore, a vital question as to how we have invested it. The vital question is as to whether profits on the investment will return rapidly, or whether the investment will lie dormant for a long term. For instance investment in a transcontinental railroad may not show a return for a century or a century and (Continued on Page Two)

ALL-STARS WON LAST NIGHT'S BASEBALL GAME

The stars shone on Acropolis Hill last night, when, with Ben Hunt on the rubber, they took the C. C.'s into camp by the score of 9 to 0. Aided by brilliant fielding, Hunt was never in difficulties, as he only allowed four scattered hits. Art Manson, catching his first game of the season, did magnificent work.

The Stars had their batting eye with them and hit Babe Fortin harder than usual. The same teams will line up on Friday evening, weather permitting, for the second game of the series.

All Stars:—Hunt, A. Manson, Breckenridge, W. Anderson, Earsman, Joe Ratchford, J. Ratchford, and B. McDaniels.

C. C.'s:—Fortin, Hannifin, J. Murphy, E. Murphy, Henning, Moore, Astori, Young, and McDonald.

"THE BETTER MAN" AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE

"The Better Man," being shown at the Majestic Theatre, is a drama of intense situations and great human interest. The contrast between the hypocrisy of the parson who wants all the world can give, and the self-sacrifice of the preacher who gives himself in assisting the people of the slums, is sharply defined. This is one of the finest dramas screened at the Majestic for a long time.

"THE DANCING GIRL" AT THE WESTHOLME THEATRE

"The Dancing Girl" was greatly appreciated by patrons of the Westholme last night. Florence Reed, as a simple little quaker girl and a popular London dancer, plays the widely different parts with striking effect. The grim solemnity of the quaker views of life is splendidly portrayed, while the love story running through the piece has a fitting climax. It is a picture well worth seeing.

FAIR NOTES

Bulkley valley say they are coming down to the Fair in numbers this year. They will by that time have harvested the best crop ever grown in the Bulkley, and, notwithstanding the unsettled times, are satisfied with the progress made in the valley in the year 1915.

Mr. Myers brought in some fine samples of Naas river grain recently. He states that the Naas river farmers, although located in the latest district in Northern B. C. to come under development, will make a good showing at the Fair, they are after the "Dewar Cup," and after it strong.

Doc Stanwood came in on last night's train.
