PACIFIC MINING NOTES

Mr. Geo. B. Gerau, the mining expert, is at the Nicholl Hotel. He is here to complete arrangements for the development of the "Brantford Group" on Fiddler mountain, and also looking over other properties on behalf of eastern financiers.

Karl Whitmore and Mack Orr are at present in town from Legate Creek. They have been prospecting their steel galena property more fully and find four parallel veins of high grade copper ore running the full length of two claims and then merging into one lead. On sinking, the veins broaden out and everything indicates an extensive body of mineral.

Amongst others at present prospecting on Legate are Bud Corley and Scottie Reid, of Rupert; Frank McKinnon, of Hazelton, and Capt. Young are also up the creek looking over the various properties.

The placer working on both Lorne and Fiddler creeks are suffering through lack of water but otherwise the outlook is good.

FIFTY-THREE STALWART RECRUITS LEFT TODAY

A body of 53 stalwart recruits arrived from the interior last night and left for the south on the Prince George to join the 67th Battalion at Victoria. They are under the command of Lieut. W. F. Cook, of Prince George. The latter was commissioned to raise a hundred men for the Western Scottish Battalion of Pioneers, and has, therefore, over half of them with him, the remainder to follow in the course of a week.

The party which left today looked just the stuff to put up a stubborn fight, and in three months should make one of the finest companies in the Canadian army. They brought with them two grizzly cubs, in splendid condition. These were the property of W. Hedges, who captured them in the spring about 400 miles north of Prince George when he shot the mother. He has handed them over to the battalion as mascots.
