

PARALYSED AND HELPLESS

Prominent Merchant Restored to Health by "Fruit-a-tives"

Brisol, N.B., July 25th, 1914.
 "I had a stroke of Paralysis in March, and this left me unable to walk or help myself and the Constipation was terrible. Finally, I took 'Fruit-a-tives' for the Constipation. This fruit medicine gradually toned up the nerves and actually relieved the paralysis. By the use of 'Fruit-a-tives' I grew stronger until all the palsy left me. I am now well and attend my store every day."
 ALVA PHILLIPS.

HOW FRENCH AIR HERO MET DEATH

The following is an account of how the daring Pegoud met his death, taken from the London Daily Mail:

The news of the death of Pegoud, the world's champion upside-down flyer, has been received in Paris with expressions of the deepest regret.

Pegoud was at Belfort aviation camp on Tuesday morning last week. He had been flying on reconnaissance since dawn and was going off duty at ten o'clock when the news was telephoned that a German Aviatik was in sight making for the town.

He mounted his machine at once and set out with his usual confidence alone to face the foe. The two machines came within fighting distance very quickly almost over the fortress of Belfort. The German was a large and heavy Aviatik, Pegoud's a swift Monocoeque. With lightning-like rapidity the two craft circled round one another seeking the advantage of position.

The night was unclouded; the soldiers in the trench beneath had the fullest view of the fight. The firing could be distinctly heard, though the machines were fully 3,000 feet high. Pegoud was the first to get to work, and having emptied his cartridge belt without effect he retired, making a graceful half turn so as to gain distance and time to reload his machine gun. The Aviatik, however, seized the opportunity, and before Pegoud was ready to fire had gained the higher position.

The Royal Standard Test

Here's where we test the choicest samples of Canada's six million acre wheat crop. We grind them into flour in the little mill you see on the left of the picture. Then comes the supreme test—bread-baking. If the bread is perfect in every way we pronounce the wheat A1 and the flour—ROYAL STANDARD.

The French soldiers rushed to the spot, well within the French lines. Pegoud was dead, but bore no traces of the terrible fall. A surgeon said he had met an instantaneous death in the air with a bullet from the German machine gun, which had severed the great artery from the heart.

The German pilot, manoeuvring skilfully, banked sharply on his left wing, thus giving the man at the machine gun a clear aim. Once more the rattle of firing broke out. This time the on-lookers were horrified to see Pegoud's machine suddenly quiver and sway uneasily. Then it came hurtling to the ground, sliding on one wing like a withered leaf from a tree. It smashed to pieces on the ground.

The Housekeeper is Right

Sometimes a housekeeper requires a quick leavening agent, and finds she has no baking powder.

What does she do?

She raises her biscuit by a mixture of cream of tartar and soda, or soda and sour milk. She may not get the proportions quite right, but she knows her food is safe. But does she ever use a mixture of alum and soda? Was there ever a housekeeper who bought alum and soda to make a home made baking powder? Intuitively she feels it would be unsafe.

Then why use baking powder made from alum or the same mixture that the housekeeper would not dare to mix and use in her food?

Alum is alum, whether bought in the drug store or in baking powder.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

is made from pure cream of tartar and contains no alum, lime or phosphate. There is absolute safety in its use.
