It is one of the most magnificent productions ever filmed.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AT WESTHOLME THEATRE

The Westholme bill tonight is composed of two star features. One is "Ambition," which is the first three-reel Chaplin to be shown here. Three thousand feet of Chaplin should produce enough laughter to lift the roof off the theatre. The other item is of an entirely different character, being a three-reel Broadway star detective drama, entitled "One Performance Only." The play is the work of Charles Brown and is produced by Eugene Mullin. It is a tale of daring daylight robbery, in which a poisoned needle and a cleverly made-up confederate play important parts. The confession of the criminal is most dramatic and spectacular.

VISIT OF INSPECTION FROM THE PROPRIETORS

T. P.'s Journal tells one of the best stories of the war. The scene is outside the Y. M. C. A. Soldiers' Hut at Euston Station, London.

One day a group of very ragged and dirty little children were outside, and, as they grew bolder, came into the entrance. The attendant said, "Now, run away, this is no place for children, but for soldiers." One little gamin, brighter than the rest, said, "Please, sir, we've put our money into this show, and we've come to see how it's run."

They were taken in and shown all round. Afterwards it transpired that these children came from one of the poorest provided schools in the north of London, and between them had subscribed two hundred farthings to the Children's Hut-Fund of the Y. M. C. A.

Knives and scissors sharpened, umbrellas repaired—Fritz, phone 583. 270-2.
