RELIGIOUS RITES OF JAP SWORD-MAKING

That the Japanese are past-masters in the art of sword-making is proved by the splendid weapons, equal to those of Toledo and Damascus, which they turn out. The actual methods of sword-making in Japan are jealously guarded, an extraordinary feature of the industry being the religious ceremony which accompanies every process of their manufacture. The walls of every sword-making shop in Japan will be found to be covered with allegorical representations of the sword-makers and the chief goddess of the Shintos.

Evil spirits are kept away by charms consisting of bits of paper and wisps of straw, while should any woman enter the shop, disaster would certainly come to the swords that are being made and to their wielders. Consequently women are absolutely debarred from entering business as sword-makers, while not only is prayer offered up before the work begins, but various religious rites, peculiar to the Japanese, are performed in order that the swords when finally completed, may be said to have been well and truly made.

Even the final processes of polishing and sharpening are characterized by certain religious ceremonies, and finally the weapons are offered, one by one, to the sword god to be blessed. This ceremony consists in placing the swords in front of the goddess of the Shintos on the wall, with an offering of sake, rice, and sweetmeats, after which prayer-scrolls are read and blessing upon the work is invoked.—Ex.

SKATING AND SLEIGHING THE ORDER OF THE DAY

While many spent New Year's Eve at the various dances or at either of the watch-night services, a lively bunch of young fellows had the time of their lives amongst the snow. Such a snow-fall being rather unusual in this mild part of the world, the sight and feel of it seemed to bring back youthful memories to many, with the result that around midnight on Third Avenue there was a regular fusillade at the corner of Sixth Street.

With a regular "back-east" tang in the air, many enjoyed sleighing on New Year's Day and yesterday, while it is to be feared that, Sunday though it was, a few were tempted to try out their skates yesterday afternoon on Morse Creek, and, judging by the bright eyes and rosy cheeks, the venture was a decided success.

"MERCILESS—"

"When peace comes," said Fraulein Dr. Kathe Schirmacher, one of the leaders of the German feminist movements, in a public speech at Kiel, "we Germans must be merciless to other countries. The whole system of German education must be changed. Knowledge of English and French is no longer necessary for a refined German woman, and the time hitherto wasted on the acquisition of these languages should in the future be utilized for open-air physical exercise, gymnastic training and military drill."—Standard.

-FACT HUNGER-

As children, our first demand is for nourishment; our second for facts.

All through life we go about searching for information.

We make a new acquaintance; but before we will accept him as a friend or invite him to our home we ask for facts about him.

We visit a foreign land; and from the moment we step across its border we are asking questions—searching for facts.

We are asked to try a new food product; isn't it instinctive with us to ask at once:

"Who makes this new article?"

"How is it made? what goes into it?"

"Is it worth the price charged for it?"

Facts—we are simply hungry for them.

Strange, isn't it, that we should so often have to search for them? Odd, that some manufacturers still withhold the facts about their product. Not always because they are facts to be ashamed of—for there are many worthy articles yet unadvertised.

But it will not be so much longer. The fact-hunger of the human race is becoming keener and keener. The more facts we get, the keener our relish for more of them.

Soon it will be impossible to sell a man or a woman anything until everything has been told about the goods that can be told through Advertising.

The public has discovered that Advertising tells much-needed facts—that, in fact, Advertising satisfies fact-hunger.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.
