ULTIMATUM TO GREECE

Just when things were beginning to look comparatively comfortable in the Near East, comes the report that Greece is likely to enter the war on the side of the Teutons.

King Constantine has gone on playing with fire long enough, and the British and French ultimatum should bring him down off the fence at one big jump.

It is abundantly clear that, for once, Britain and her Allies have paved the way for a considerable distance ahead, and that they are quite ready for eventualities.

ing on the western front has proven that the defending army when properly entrenched has an enormous advantage and that invariably the attacking force suffers very heavily.

The presentation of an ultimatum to Greece is further evidence of Allied preparedness. It is simply an intimation that France, Italy and Britain are ready for the fray; that Greece had better decide quickly, and that the Allies are not greatly concerned as to which side she officially supports now.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The report that Bulgaria and Turkey desire to open separate peace negotiations offsets the Vienna report regarding Montenegro, and the probability is that they are equally untrue.

In executing Villa's executioner Carranza's men have done unto him as he had done unto others.

King Constantine must be now realizing that the Allies do not care much for his benevolent neutrality.

Mayor McCaffery has already taken hold of the city's affairs in quiet, businesslike fashion.

BELGIAN INDUSTRIES ARE SWALLOWED UP

The industrial and commercial paralysis into which Belgium has been plunged by the German invasion has put an end to all activities except one. On that one alone Belgium is dependent for such livelihood as can exist under the terrible conditions of oppression.

It seems almost an anomaly that such an efficient organization should spring up out of the chaos resulting from the war, but the fact remains that the Belgian Relief Committee is probably one of the best managed details of the present war.

Perhaps a comparison would illustrate the situation better. The conditions are practically the same as they would be if seven-eighths of the population of Canada had to look each day to a distribution bureau for bread and all the residents of the province of Quebec were forced to get relief from a committee or starve or freeze to death.

This committee has as its working capital the generosity of the people of the world—those who, for humanity's sake, give what they can to keep their fellow men from the pangs of hunger. It required courage to attempt a work like this and often the funds and supplies have been low, but rather than let themselves become discouraged the committee members renewed their activities and kept the good work going.

To Canada the members of this organization are obliged to turn this winter for assistance. Wheat is the one great need and Canada must supply it. Canada's debt to the Belgian nation may be paid in part through her donations of wheat.

The Royal Standard Test

Here's where we test the choicest samples of Canada's six million acre wheat crop. We grind them into flour in the little mill you see on the left of the picture. Then comes the supreme test—bread-baking. If the bread is perfect in every way we pronounce the wheat A1 and the flour—ROYAL STANDARD.
