MUNITIONS GRAFT

The speech on the methods of the shell committee, by Hon. Wm. Pugsley, seems to have caused quite a sensation in Ottawa. Why it should have done so is rather hard to understand, since it has long been clear that a merry game was going on amongst the contractors and the awarders of the contracts who, for some reason or another, were entitled to a share of the good things, but it was left to the really top-notch artists in the business to handle the munitions. Even the rake-off in the automobile business has to take a back seat when the $300,000,000 of munitions contracts is brought along.

D. A. Thomas was sent over to Canada to find out where the exorbitant profits were going, and there is no doubt he managed to bring things down to a fairly honest basis. Being a discreet man, he did not make public in Britain what he had discovered in Canada, but doubtless the members of the British cabinet are thoroughly conversant with the way in which Britain was soaked, just for friendship's sake. How the British cabinet ministers must admire Canadian methods, taking the work of the shell committee as an example.

Yesterday, Mr. Pugsley's speech would be quoted in Britain, and the British people will be anxious to know exactly who the miscreants were who reckoned that the Empire's extremity was their opportunity to get rich quick. It is only fair that they should know, as, otherwise, the stigma will be attached for generations to every Canadian and to everything Canadian. The Canadian soldiers have earned a magnificent reputation on the battlefields of France and Flanders, while a section of the men who remained at home have spent their time and energies in plundering the mother country. These men should, in the interests of Canada and of common honesty, be held up to the public gaze that men may know them. Every Canadian worthy of the name should rise against the men who have brought dishonor to the fair name of Canada.

If any member of the Canadian Parliament has been in any way whatever connected with this business, he should be sent to the penitentiary, if the law allows that course. Reading a man out of a political party is not sufficient punishment for an offence like this. If it cannot be termed treason, it is at least treachery of the meanest description. It must make the blood of every man in the British Isles boil to think that he and his family have been practicing the strictest economy in their personal expenditure, with a view to releasing as much capital as possible for the purchase of war munitions, while men in Canada have raked in millions of that hard earned money simply by signing a contract form. Unless this matter is cleared up, and cleared up thoroughly, Canada will stand disgraced before Britain, India, South Africa, New Zealand and Australia for all time.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The reports regarding the Montenegrin episode are still conflicting, but it seems clear that Austria has gained the upper hand there, either by fair means or foul.

The evacuation of Lutsk was the brightest news in yesterday's despatches. The Russians are evidently regaining the ground lost last year.

The Entente emissaries are blamed for stirring up a revolution in Greece. It will be interesting to watch for the distribution of the blame when the German people start something around Berlin.

Pugsley must have been in his element shelling the shell committee.

Be at the Liberal annual meeting on Friday in the Stork Block. There will be several lively speeches.

SPURR'S MARKET MOVES INTO LARGER PREMISES

Spurr's Market, which was opened three years ago on Third Avenue, has developed such an extensive business that it has been found necessary to move into more commodious premises, next door to the Parkin-Ward Company. The new store has been made one of the most attractive in the city.

Specialists for three years in all varieties of fresh and smoked fish, Spurr's still make this one of their leading lines, while they also carry a tastefully displayed stock of all lines of groceries and table delicacies, while, as at the old stand, there is always a large and widely varied stock of fresh fruits and vegetables on hand.
