TO WHAT ADVANTAGE?

Under the above caption the Victoria Colonist details many reasons why the people of Rossland should not venture to oust the Hon. Lorne Campbell in the by-election. The Bowserian sheet says that the only issue in Rossland is as to whether Mr. Campbell will be minister of mines, or whether that portfolio will remain vacant for the remainder of the session.

In the first place, neither Rossland nor any other part of the province is genuinely interested as to whether Bowser or Campbell is officially recorded as minister of mines. Bowser will in any case be the minister in fact, if not in name. In the second place, if Lorne Campbell is not returned, it will not make the slightest difference to Rossland or any other mining district in the province, insofar as the prosecution of the mining industry is concerned. Lorne Campbell is not the protector and preserver of the mineral resources of the province, but is simply the representative of the mining syndicates in the Bowser cabinet. The defeat of this representative will be a defeat for the syndicates and a victory for the people.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Journal says that the mayor has found Premier Bowser and the Hon. William Manson willing to aid in the passing of the private bill covering the serial bond issue. What did the Journal expect these gentlemen to do anyway—do everything they possibly could to put obstacles in the way?

Portland, Ore., is luckier than Prince Rupert. It not only has the prospect of a ship-building plant, but already has orders for two steel steamers.

The railroad and steamship lines to the south are reducing their through rates from Alaskan points to meet the Grand Trunk Pacific competition, but they cannot alter the geographical position of Prince Rupert, which enables a business man to reach the east two days sooner than by the southern route.

Prince Oscar of Germany must be an irritable young Teuton when he takes offence when a Russian shell greets him, even though it does come as rather a shock.

There are still great movements of German troops on the western front. Perhaps they are practicing moving in view of what is liable to take place just when General Joffre is ready to give the word.

ARTHUR AND DICK, THE TWO BEAUTIFUL BOYS

That closure was a good thing for Parliament which he did and got away with it. Being now quite strong on his legs, Artie was lifted out of the kindergarten sports and put at real work. His elderly parents have given him all the chores to do and he is fond of the job. He runs his legs off for them. Naturally they are proud of him and keep a record of his smart sayings. Artie is a smart sayer, if ever there was one, being about the only one of the family who is in that line of business. His latest budget of smart sayings had to do with the Shell Committee which was violently attacked by Dr. Pugsley. Artie is supposed to have given him his answer. This is a matter of opinion—some say he did, others say he didn't. Only lately Artie was presented with that silver cup I mentioned a few paragraphs ago. This gift is awarded for deportment and Artie's deportment has always been up to sample. In this case the silver cup is the solicitor-generalship with the post of Privy Councillor on the side. Although this does not entitle him to full cabinet rank and salary, it indicates that the Hon. Arthur Meighan, if he has not fully arrived, it at least rapidly approaching.

Meanwhile what about Dick? Dick was a bad actor from the start. When Dick first saw the light of Ottawa, some four years ago, he let out a yell that could be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He became known for his squalls. In fact squalls were bound to occur whenever Dick opened his mouth. He didn't like the color of the government's hair and said so. Dick was born talking. He talked much and often, and his talk, let me tell you, wasn't always nursery rhymes. Dick wasn't saying "patty-cake, patty-cake," for any man. In addition to doing his own talking, Dick did his own thinking. He was a precocious infant and some of his thoughts were not fit to print.

At least the Borden government tried to put the lid on him from time to time.

Such treatment drove little Dick into bad courses. Cruelty was not actually used, but the rod was threatened and Dick, being high spirited, naturally talked harder than ever. His talk, which was a strange mixture of Chinook, Tumbleweed, and snowslides, was at first mistaken for wind on the stomach, but later on, being qualified with Parliamentary experience and common sense, was recognized as Calgary eloquence. As nobody paid him the attention he thought he deserved, Dick drifted into bad company. He chummed up with another naughty boy named Jam Aikens and together they plotted to visit the cellar and blow up the gas meter. When this plot was discovered Dick broke out in another spot. He deliberately kicked the C. N. R. in the face, although the C. N. R. was willing to be a kind uncle to them if he would say nothing more about the money. However, Dick, having been hand-fed by the C. N. R., went on clawing the air and was presently joined by seven other naughty boys who also proved themselves hefty kickers. It sounded so much like a riot that the Borden government decided to interfere and adopt Dick then and there. This was done accordingly.
