

A LIFETIME OF SICKNESS

Worn Out, Thin and Miserable Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

PALMISTON, June 20th, 1914.
"Stomach Trouble and Distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Some time ago, I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives,' your famous fruit medicine, and they completely relieved me. To-day I am feeling fine and a physician, meeting me on the street, asked the reason for my improved appearance. I said, 'I am taking Fruit-a-tives.' He said, 'If Fruit-a-tives make you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can.'"

his cash. Being dissatisfied with the way the books were kept he called a meeting of directors and he was asked to have an independent audit made. He at once engaged Mr. Peterson to carry out that audit.

In reply to Mr. Carss he said that he had no suspicion of the assistant secretary's honesty. This closed the evidence.

In moving for non-suit, Alex. M. Manson claimed that the plaintiffs had not lived up to the terms of their contract, having in the first instance failed to get a weekly cash report and again in failing to notify the head office of the company of the shortage. He stated that had the directors of the club fulfilled the obligations of the contract the defalcations would have been detected much sooner. He cited cases in support of his contentions. He also contended that the auditor had been negligent in carrying out his duties. Suspicion was first aroused in January and it was not until March that the auditor discovered a shortage, and then he only found $400 instead of the $1,500 actually short.

Mr. Carss, in reply, contended that counsel for the defendant had made out no case for non-suit. Mr. Macleod had sworn that notice of the defalcations was made through Mr. Forster, who represented the company here and through him the premium had been paid. With regard to the audit, he held that the directors could not be held responsible for that, and went on to show that even the auditor could not be held responsible, as his statement was drawn up from the books provided by the accountant. If a book or part of a book were missing the auditor could not be held responsible. Judgment was reserved until today.
