HUN FAILURE

Reports from the western front are decidedly reassuring and it seems certain that, if the Germans persist in attacking our lines, they will be so badly crushed in three months that the end will be in sight. However, it is hardly likely that they will continue the extravagant tactics followed during the past two weeks and the probability is that matters will settle down into the old groove before long, with the Allies quietly biding their time.

Kitchener said it would take three years and we shall be thoroughly satisfied if the job is completed satisfactorily in that time. One fact is abundantly clear, however—the Germans can never hope to win. They have failed in the Near East, where the Turks are now a burden instead of an asset and the Bulgarians are getting tired of the whole miserable business. Though there is little news from the Galician and Riga fronts, there is no reason to doubt that the Russians have matters well in hand there, while in Asia Minor they are making such rapid progress that they may very soon link up with the British Mesopotamia expeditionary force, if assistance is needed in that direction.

All along the western front, the Allies are content to hold their positions while the Huns batter their heads to pieces against the defences. The French, Belgians and British are no longer stemming the rush of victorious hordes, as they had to do early in the war, but are slowly crushing an army which is now to all intents and purposes defeated.

Colonel Warden wants a distinctive Prince Rupert company in his battalion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

An inventor in California has discovered a process by which he is able to produce gasoline for five cents per gallon. It is to be hoped that he keeps it away from the Standard Oil group. John D. and his associates are simply coining money out of gasoline at war prices.

It is too bad that the Hun princeling Joachim was disappointed in his wedding gift, but what would the poor fellow have done with Verdun anyhow?

With the Turks being exterminated in Asia Minor and the Tories being annihilated in British Columbia life will be more worth living in future.

The British Columbia accounts for the year ending March, 1915, show a deficit of $4,000,000. Conservatives will consider that this is a pretty good showing in these hard times.

James J. Hill thinks there is a rosy future ahead for British Columbia. After what has happened in the past ten days there certainly is.

It begins to look as if the rum-pus in Saskatchewan is purely a "Bob" Rogers move, and will act as a boomerang to the election wizard. Rogers escaped the Manitoba wreck, but his time is surely coming.

COMMITTEE CHANGE

The city clerk last night reported to the city council the resignation of Ald. Casey from the chairmanship of the health, licence and market committee and the appointment of Ald. McRae in his stead.

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY" AT THE WESTHOLME

"The Diamond from the Sky" drew the usual crowded house at the Westholme last night, when the 25th episode of this most interesting and exciting serial was screened. The fortunes of John Powell, Esther and the others are being as closely followed as at first.

There are two good dramas in "The Three Brothers" and "On the Ledge." The latter is a story of a brother and sister, brought up in poverty. The boy is adopted by wealthy people, while the girl reaches womanhood in the squalor of the slums. It is a striking story, full of human interest. The Gaumont Graphic is one of the finest features of the show, giving splendid views from the front.

There is a big feature for Wednesday, with Donald Brian starring in a five-act drama.

SEVEN GOOD REELS
AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

There is a good seven-reel program at the Majestic tonight, each item of which is interesting. "The Avenging Shot" is a dramatic story of retribution. "Was It Her Duty?" is a drama of everyday life which will appeal to all. "The Clam-shell Suffragette" is a most laughable tale of the world ruled by women. The scenes are laid in the stone age and the ladies club their husbands when they show the slightest sign of independence. "Money-Money-Money" is a story of domestic extravagance and what it led to, but of course all ends happily. There is a particularly clever reel of Lubin cartoons, which is the best thing of the kind seen for a long time. Wednesday brings along the great war feature, "Sons of France."

"CALL OF THE NORTH"

The "Call of the North" is all-powerful. Captain C. A. Johnson, who first went to Alaska in 1888, establishing a salmon saltery on the shore of Bering Sea, is on his way to Alaska as usual, though he has now no active business interests there. This veteran of the north, who now spends the winter in San Francisco, simply cannot resist the call. He sold out his cannery interests several years ago, but each spring sees him preparing for Alaska. This year he will stay in Seward just to see what is going on.
