INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT SATURDAY EVENING POST

Mr. Osborne Adamson, western representative for the Curtis Publishing Company, who has been in town for a few days, left for the east this morning. Mr. Adamson gives some remarkable figures in connection with the work of publishing the Saturday Evening Post and the Lady's Home Journal. The latter requires a special train of ninety cars to take one issue from Philadelphia to New York and the firm uses 12,000,000 stamps every year besides paying the United States government $600,000 for mailing copies.

It costs the company six cents to produce the Post and 19 cents for the Home Journal, and the postage on news dealers' shipments alone amounts to more than is paid by the dealers for their copies. Advertising, of course, is the source of revenue to the company. So great is the mailing business of the firm that they have had a post office of their own established in their building in Philadelphia.
