MORE STALLING

Germany is evidently still of the opinion that the United States can be kept writing notes indefinitely and that any kind of a stalling reply will serve the purpose of keeping up the correspondence. With the usual short-sightedness of the bully, Germany has mistaken the American desire for peace as a sign of weakness. There seems to be only one course open to President Wilson and that is war, without any further negotiations and without going to the trouble of sending an ultimatum. Wilson's last note made the situation perfectly clear and the time for action has arrived. It is questionable if the United States can aid the Allies to any great extent by becoming a belligerent, but the honor of America and of its president calls for it. Even if the United States does not send a single battalion or a single ship to Europe, she cannot carry on further diplomatic negotiations with a nation which has stooped so low as Germany has done in her hedging of the submarine controversy.

GERMAN METHODS

If there is any truth in the report that Germany has offered to send troops into Holland on the excuse that Britain intends to attack that country, it will be just in keeping with German ideas of honor. With German troops in Holland, Dutch neutrality would be immediately broken, unless the German troops were immediately interned, and the Allies would be forced to attack Holland. It seems impossible that Holland can accept the German proposal, but, if she does, it is a clear sign that she is not neutral but pro-German.

and, if Germans are allowed to enter Holland, ostensibly for defensive purposes, it will simply mean that Holland will become an active, instead of a secret, belligerent.

To have Holland actively against us would be better than to have her supplying Germany with foodstuffs, as she undoubtedly is at present. The Dutch coast would be easily blockaded and would also present a very easy target for the British naval guns. With the Dutch dykes blown to pieces, Holland would be immediately flooded by the North Sea and a German army would have to take to boats. Holland has everything to lose and nothing to gain by admitting German troops.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Province in discussing Sir Sam's speech regarding the munitions contracts concludes thus: "There was so much that he said he knew nothing about that he should be able to understand the necessity for the investigation."

The Tories are still shouting that the Liberals have been able to discover no corruption at Victoria. Evidently the Tories do not consider that there was anything corrupt in the manner in which the sub-contracts for the excavation for the Parliament Building were handled. It was just the usual thing, as Hannington said about his rake-off.

Rev. Boulton, in accepting the nomination as Conservative candidate in South Vancouver, said that "the citizen of today strongly believes in righteousness, in justice, in morality and brotherhood and will not give his support to the candidate who does not stand for the highest things."

This was evidently discovered by the Tories after the by-elections.

According to Tory ideas there was nothing corrupt in allowing Joe Matson to hand over $35,000 to the Colonist and the News-Advertiser and quite all right to pay $300,000 for the Kitsilano Reserve without putting the matter before the house.

After attempting to address a political meeting in Vancouver, the President of the Council in the Bowser government is understood to agree with our suggestion that it is not the political tide that has turned since the recent by-elections. It is the worm.—Victoria Times.

DRAMA AND COMEDY AT WESTHOLME THEATRE

The Topical Budget in the Westholme program tonight contains some particularly striking war scenes, while the dramas "Dog of Flanders" and "Satan McAllister's Heir" are both good. The latter is a rough and ready tale of western life, while the former is a story of old Flanders which should be unusually interesting at the present time.

There are also three good comedies, the best of which is "Milling the Militant," a most laughable story of the strenuous days of the demand for woman suffrage.

Pipes, chimneys, ranges and furnaces cleaned and put in order. 97.

CARNIVAL OF THE ALLIES WAS TREMENDOUS SUCCESS

In the centre of this side of the hall was Serbia, with Mrs. J. H. McLeod in charge. Here there was a background of the Union Jack and a glorious array of cut flowers, pot plants, ferns and everything for the garden in front. Carnations and roses were in big demand, while many purchasers were found for daisy roots, etc.

At the corner, Joe Scott, Jr., and George H. Munro were conducting some kind of a game that earned you a dollar for ten cents and they seemed to be able to convince all that it was easy money. They couldn't gather in the dimes fast enough.

Last, but not least, was the Russian booth, where Mrs. Geo. McColl and her assistants had, like the others, spared no pains in decorating. Here the bear of Russia was in evidence perched over the entrance with a Russian flag in his paw. The color tone was green and yellow, made up of evergreens with daffodils showing everywhere, while the Russian colors were draped along the beams. The ladies were kept busy serving supper for all comers and later dispensing ice cream and cooling drinks to the dancers.

One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the singing of "Rule Britannia" and "God Save the King" by representatives of each of the Allied nations. In the centre was the real John Bull accompanied by Brit-
