TORY METHODS

The local Tory organ, without waiting to hear what M. A. Macdonald had to say in regard to the Gosden charges, rushed into big type to declare that the Liberal candidate had been connected directly with the paying for votes in the Vancouver election. Today, it is just possible that the Journal may be sorry that it did not publish the exact evidence of Gosden and await developments. However, the garbled Tory message was too good to allow of one more opportunity to attempt to regain the lost Tory prestige to be missed.

In spite of the fact that the Tory organ sought to condemn the Liberals in general and M. A. Macdonald in particular, because of the evidence of Gosden, we refrain meantime from any comment on that evidence, since Gosden has been arrested for perjury. It is time enough to condemn a man when he has been found guilty. If Gosden is proven guilty of the crime with which he is charged, it is to be hoped, for the sake of the honor of British Columbia and Canada, that the men who were behind him receive suitable punishment.

CLEANING UP

Annance, the man who was arrested on information laid by the Liberals for attempted impersonation in the Vancouver election, has received a fitting sentence, and it is to be hoped that his experience will be a warning to others who may have been tempted to make a little easy money by such criminal methods.

In following up the information of which they had become possessed, the Liberals have done much to clean up politics in this province, and such a cleaning-up process was evidently very necessary. In bringing about the investigation when they did, the Liberals also did good work from a party standpoint, as it is very evident that the last thing the Tories wanted was an investigation. The scheme clearly was to bring out the men who claimed that they had been paid to vote for Macdonald, just before the general election, so that the Liberals would have no opportunity to refute the statements effectively. The plot has fallen down badly and must rebound on to the Tory heads from which the idea originated.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Berlin report that an Austrian steamer had been torpedoed without warning is probably a crude attempt to gain the sympathy of the United States, while it will afford a splendid opportunity to send some more notes to Washington.

Now that the Kaiser has decorated the deported Captain Boyd for "distinguished conduct," Washington will probably recognize the futility of accepting the word of the head of the German nation in regard to submarines or anything else.

The Journal has kept on predicting that the election frauds would be brought home to the "higher-ups." Perhaps they will.

The Vancouver Liberals would be delighted to know where all the thousands of dollars of Liberal election money was supposed to come from, as they were so hard up during the election that they had no election fund.

LORDSHIP OF THE BALTIC IS THE ISSUE

The fate of Denmark, the control of the Sound and the Belts, the international position of the Kiel Canal, the command of the Baltic, the commerce of Northern Europe—all these big issues hang upon the outcome of the present war.

If Germany is victorious, the hegemony of the Baltic and its shores will be not the least valuable among many and magnificent prizes which she will secure. Nay, a German victory is not essential. If Germany can, through the good offices of the premature peace-mongers, procure a tolerable draw she will achieve her Baltic purposes none the less surely. It was during the fifteen months of peace that succeeded the premature Treaty of Amiens in 1802 that Napoleon made vaster annexations of territory than he had been able to accomplish during all the preceding years of war. At the end of that brief period he renewed the war with incomparably greater resources and immeasurably better chances of obtaining the goal of his ambition—the lordship of the world.

The awful sequel to the untimely peace of 1802 should be a solemn warning to those who would advocate the making of terms with an undefeated Germany this or next year. The sequel would inevitably be the German absorption of Denmark—as also, no doubt, of the Netherlands as an outlet to the North Sea—the establishment of commercial
