P. G. E.

It is gratifying to find that the men who have had charge of the provincial purse are philanthropists. They made a deal with the Pacific Great Eastern that the proceeds of the bonds, when sold, would be handed over to the company as the work proceeded and in proportion to the work done. The estimated cost of the work was a little over eighteen millions. The work is only partially completed, but already over eighteen millions have been handed over to the company, while $16,000 of interest on the bonds has already been paid out of the public treasury, though this fact was hidden at first.

Bowser now admits that he had "not hewed to the line" in this matter, and gave as his excuse that, had the full amount not been handed over, the company would have gone bankrupt. In this connection, it is interesting to go over the list of the members of the company and to bear in mind that these gentlemen are largely of the millionaire class. How much of their own cash did they put into the railroad? Their chief work was to get the charter for the railroad; let the construction work to themselves and their friends, and sit down and wait for the profits to be earned for them by the sub-contractors.

Bowser allowed criminal financing to be carried out by the government in order that this company might not go bankrupt. How much harm would it have done to this province had the company been made to stay with its financial arrangements and go bankrupt if it wanted to? If the millionaire railroad promoters, who got all the profits, had little real interest in the province, that they would allow the company to go bankrupt simply because the government refused to be a party to criminal financial proceedings, while they retained their millions, they were unworthy of any government support in the first instance. The Pacific Great Eastern deal requires a good deal of investigating and in the next few months the public will learn a few more things about Tory financial methods in this province.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Bowser did not "hew to the line" in the Pacific Great Eastern financing, but this is no new failing on the part of this combination of Whitney and Asquith. He suspended hewing operations in regard to the Dominion Trust Act and many other little episodes, though he spared no effort to "get there" in the Nanaimo military movement.

William Manson was evidently quite content, as usual, to do the will of Bowser in regard to the overpayments to the P. G. E. The P. G. E. evidently must be financed irrespective of agreements or honest parliamentary procedure. This is probably what the Tory press describes as "bluff honesty".

"The story of the Stikine," one of the most interesting tales of Tory adventure in Northern British Columbia, is in the hands of the publishers and may see the light of day shortly. The most interesting chapter is "How We Commandeered the River," written by "Dynamite Joe."

In describing the dual personality of Bowser, Jekyll and Hyde would come much nearer the mark than Asquith and Whitney.

THE CRY OF THE PRISONERS

We left our homes to fight for King and Country.
We did our little bit for you out there.
We fought them fair, and then they gassed us,
And now we're Prisoners of War, on fare That's all too scanty.
SEND US BREAD.

Some of us while on our Empire's Mission Got badly wounded, sore in need of aid,
All of us starving; in addition,
Affliction on us heavily is laid,
And we are hungry,
SEND US BREAD.

Oh, you who live in plenty's larder In Western Canada where grows the grain Help us to bear the fate that's harder,
Tightening our belts to ease the pain of gnawing hunger,
SEND US BREAD.

You cheered us when we left the Station,
You helped us on our way to fight the Huns,
We, to uphold the honor of the Nation,
Went forth to man our Country's guns.
Now we are starving,
SEND US BREAD.

On God we still rely, as ever,
But God He works by human hands,
Will you not, out of your abundance,
sever
Some store for Prisoners in foreign Lands?
For we're so hungry,
SEND US BREAD.

The above verses were written by a prisoner of war in Germany and should be a great incentive to the people of the west to do everything they possibly can to send food to the boys who have not only to put up with the jeers of their jailors, but have to do so on empty stomachs.
