DAILY EDITION

Thursday, May 18, 1916.

That the Russians are doing magnificent work in Turkey in Asia is evidenced by the appeal of Enver Pasha, the leader of the Young Turks and dictator in Turkey. His cry to Germany for men and munitions will not fall upon deaf ears. It will be heard with alarm, but it seems impossible that it ever can be adequately answered. Germany has her hands more than full on the western and eastern fronts, while her Balkan force is liable to have to resist a determined Allied attack at any time, while the large German army, which was recently reported at Smyrna, is too far away from the line of the Russian attack to be of any service.

The Grand Duke seems to have carried out his plans with great success and Bagdad and the Turkish army seem to be at his mercy. If the Russians are successful in releasing the army of General Townshend there will be great rejoicing, while the fall of Bagdad will be a blow from which the Turks will never recover.

The fall of Bagdad will also be a tremendous blow to Germany, as it is no secret that Berlin has simply been biding her time to take over the territory through which was to run Germany's great steel artery to the East. With Bagdad in the hands of the Russians, the great German dream of eastern expansion is at an end for many years to come.

It has been often stated that this war is simply a matter of men and money. Great Britain has provided much of the money, but Russia has ably done her share in men. With the Russians holding the Germans on the eastern front; Russians aiding the gallant French army to drive back the enemy from Verdun, and the Russian Caucasian army driving the Turks out of Asia, with a big prospect of taking the great Moslem stronghold of Bagdad, the story of the great war must contain many chapters of Russian history, and the arrangements after peace has been declared are liable to be largely influenced by Russia.

The one great feature of the war is that there is no thought that any one nation is doing more than its share. Each is doing its utmost, according to its abilities, and it is a case of "each for all, and all for each."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The German naval theory seems to be "He who fights and runs away, lives to run away some other day."

The Ross rifle may be defective as a service weapon, but the Germans have never noticed it.

Probably Kaiser Bill did not indulge in "note" language when he got Enver's "Cry from Mesopotamia." He probably said "Ach, can't he see I'm busy," with a few German expletives thrown in for seasoning.

So far, the evidence in the fuse enquiry at Ottawa has borne out accurately the charges made by George Kyte. None of the committee seems to have known all that went on, but each knew a little and when the various littles are put together, they are going to make a "muckle."

In the Davidson enquiry, Col. Allison said he did not accept a part of the commission "because I wanted it to be distinctly understood that I should not receive any commission in connection with purchases made by Canada."

SHEDDING A DELUSION

The people of the United States have shed their delusion that there is an eastern and a western hemisphere, and that nothing can ever pass between them but immigrants and tourists and trade, and realized that this world is one round globe that gets smaller and smaller every decade if you measure it by days' journeys. They are only going over the lesson the British have learnt in the last score or so of years. This is one world, and bayonets are a crop that spreads. Let them gather and seed, it matters not how far from you, and a time will come when they will be sticking up under your nose. There is no real peace but the peace of the whole world, and that is only to be kept by the whole world resisting and suppressing aggression wherever it arises. To anyone who watches the American Press this realization has been more and more manifest. From dreams of aloofness and ineffable superiority, America comes round very rapidly to a conception of an active participation in the difficult business of statescraft. She is thinking of alliances, of throwing her weight and influence upon the side of law and security.—H. G. Wells, in the Daily Chronicle.

From Yoakum's evidence in regard to the amounts drawn by the Colonel, this stand of the Colonel's must have been slightly misunderstood.

"THE GODDESS" AND "GRAFT" AT WESTHOLME

"The Goddess" is the feature of the Westholme program tonight. This serial is always quaintly amusing while it is rich in human interest. There is also a good railroad drama in which the daring Helen Holmes is the star: the two-act drama "The Confession," should prove to be intensely dramatic, while there are two first-rate comedies in "Ups and Downs" and "White Washing William." At the second show, "Graft" will be shown, for the benefit of any who may have missed it on Monday.

On Friday and Saturday, Mary Pickford will appear in "Madame Butterfly." This should certainly be the finest Pickford photoplay ever shown in Prince Rupert.
