DEVELOPMENT

The Victoria Colonist, evidently tired of the Mackenzie-Mann idea of development and the Songhees Matsonian idea of progress, has made the discovery that there is a "psychological side to provincial development." It also says:-

"Great resources are important; great opportunities! are invaluable; but the mind to utilize them is greater than either, and it is in respect to) the latter that the people of British Columbia do not, as a rule, measure up to what is necessary if the province is to become what we are all confiwe rely too little upon ourselves."

Prince Rupert, June 29, 1916. Editor Daily News:-Replying to letter in your paper of the 28th instant-signed M. Weinstein.

When I cautioned the fire committee on Monday evening re the non-observance of usual regulations in placing orders for uniforms I was not aware as to who made the uniforms in question last year. However, Mr. Weinstein says he made them.

In substantiation of my remarks I herewith submit a signed statement by the Chinaman in question, who this year asked! permission to submit a tender, stating as evidence of his ability to do the work that he had last year done part of the work.
