REMARKABLE STORY OF GERMAN SPY SYSTEM

A remarkable story showing the extraordinary versatility of the German spy is related by a British Colonial officer just home on leave (says the Weekly Dispatch.)

"On the part of the British front where my regiment was stationed," he said, "we were puzzled to know the means by which the German Intelligence Department were able to discover certain pieces of information, not of very great importance, but still important enough to worry us.

"Now, at the back of our lines the peasants were ploughing the fields with the admirable non-chalance and indifference to shells which has so won our admiration. We knew it could not be any of them, for they were all known to us—or at least we thought they all were.

"This business was getting much too hot to be tolerated any longer, so an officer was ordered out, but this time he took with him half a dozen men. In the course of their search they came to an isolated farm, through the door of which was passing an old and bent peasant woman, whose face was furrowed with the usual lines of age.

"Our men were inclined to be suspicious about this woman, and promptly told her to hold her hands up. Having searched her, they marched inside the farm and found three other supposed peasant women there with hoes in their hands who affected well-feigned surprise when we told them in turn to hold up their hands.

"When all four had been marched up into line we started giving their faces a good scraping and, as we suspected, the age lines easily washed off, revealing the unmistakable physiognomies of Germans. Seeing that the game was up, they promptly confessed their real identity. The first one we had captured was a German officer and the other three non-commissioned officers.

"They had cleverly disguised themselves as peasant women, painting in the necessary lines, and to make the deception even more complete had actually worked in the field from morning till evening as hard as any of the genuine peasants."

GERMAN PEOPLE MUST REMAIN IN GERMANY

A Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zürcher Zeitung states that no more passports to visit foreign countries will be issued to civilians by the German authorities, and that this measure is to be enforced even as regards Austria-Hungary and Turkey. The effect of this measure will be severely felt in Switzerland, where, since the war began, the Germans have been by far the most numerous visitors to the mountain resorts. It is believed that the immediate object of this measure is to keep money in Germany. For a considerable time German spa and hotel directors have been complaining of the lack of patronage shown by many Germans in spending money in Switzerland instead of in their own forest and mountain resorts.

The Tale The Wagons Tell

My office window faces a street, close to the railway freight sheds.

All day long a steady stream of trucks and lorries lumber by—loaded with boxes, barrels and bales.

One truck I noticed the other afternoon was particularly interesting. No two boxes were the same, and stencilled on the end of each was the name of some well-known product—soap, tobacco, socks, breakfast food, cocoa, port, tea, chocolates, perfumery and baking powder.

Gathered there in prosaic wooden boxes were the results of thousands of hand's labor in all parts of the world.

The cocoa had been grown in Brazil, shipped to Bristol, transhipped to Montreal and finally distributed from Toronto.

The tea was gathered by swart-skinned natives of the romantic island of Ceylon; from sunny Portugal the luscious, big grapes had been gathered years ago, fermented, bottled and branded with a famous name; from Egypt had come the cotton and from South America the dyes that entered into the product finally stamped with the brand of a well-known hosiery.

There, behind that obviously prosaic truck-load of freight was the whole romance of modern commerce—the skilled production, the universal demand for food, drink and raiment, and the world-wide distribution of the things we use every day.

And then I speculated why we use these things every day, instead of some other things; and that brought me plump back to my own job of advertising.

The names of some of the boxes on the lorry were known everywhere to-day, but had been unknown a few years ago; and I saw then more clearly than ever before that Advertising is really a great channel digger. It is like the Panama Canal. You can sail from Montreal to Vancouver now, around the Horn. You can get there, but it is going to take months. A year or so from now you will sail through the Panama Canal and chop the journey to less than half. A new channel will have been dug.

The great names in commerce to-day are those of the manufacturers who have let modern advertising steam-shovel a channel across the isthmus of distributing difficulties.

The great names in the commerce of to-morrow will be those of men who widen and dredge this channel so that the greater traffic may pass smoothly and quickly from the source of production to the homes of the consumer.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper. If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lunenburg Building, Toronto.

2,000,000 Belgians Depend on us for Bread!

Since shortly after the German invasion, the Belgians have depended for food entirely on the "Commission for Relief in Belgium". Their own store of food, even if not destroyed or pillaged, would last only three weeks—they have had no chance to raise more—and the ruthless Germans refuse to supply them!

Backed by the

so generously contributed in the British Empire and the United States, the neutral Belgian Relief Commission has imported enough wheat, flour and other foods to feed the whole nation so far. The great majority of the 7,000,000 Belgians left in the country have been able to pay for their daily allowance of bread—but a steadily growing number have no money left.

Unless we are willing to let these hundreds of thousands of women, children and old men starve, they must be fed at the expense of the Belgian Relief Fund. To make this possible someone must contribute nearly $3,000,000 a month—every month—all this winter!

No people under the Allied Flags are as well able to contribute generously as we Canadians! No cause has ever been more deserving of help! In the name of justice and humanity—for the sake of our own self-respect—let us give all we can to help our martyred Allies!

Production and Thrift

TO win the war with the decisiveness which will ensure lasting peace, the Empire will require to put forth its full collective power in men and in money. From this viewpoint it is our true policy to augment our financial strength by multiplying our productive exertions and by exercising rigid economy, which reduces to the minimum all expenditures upon luxuries and non-essentials. Only in this way shall we be able to make good the loss caused by the withdrawal of so many of our workers from industrial activities, repair the wastage of the war, and find the funds for its continuance. It cannot be too frequently or too earnestly impressed upon our people that the heaviest burdens of the conflict still lie before us, and that industry and thrift are, for those who remain at home, supreme patriotic duties upon whose faithful fulfillment our success, and consequently our national safety, may ultimately depend.—SIR THOMAS WHITE, Minister of Finance.

PRODUCE MORE, SAVE MORE.
MAKE LABOUR EFFICIENT.
SAVE MATERIALS FROM WASTE.
SPEND MONEY WISELY.

LET US PRODUCE AND SAVE—
The war is now turning on a contest of all forces and resources—men, munitions, food, money. The call to all is to produce more and more. It may be necessary to work harder. The place of those who enlist must be taken by those at home, men and women, old and young. The more we produce the more we can save. Produce more on the farms and in the gardens. Save more and help to win the war.

LET US NOT WASTE MATERIALS—
Begin at home. The larger portion of salaries and wages is spent on the home—food, fuel, light, clothing. Are any of these things being wasted? $20.00 a year saved from waste in every home in Canada will more than pay the interest on a war debt of $500,000,000.

LET US SPEND OUR MONEY WISELY—
Are you spending your money to the best advantage? What do you think of extravagance in war time? Tens of thousands of Canadians are daily risking their lives for us at home. Is it not our duty to be careful and economical? Canadian dollars are an important part of the war equipment. Make them tell. Have a War Savings Account. Buy a War Bond.

LET US NOT WASTE OUR LABOUR—
In this war-time all labour should be directly productive or should be assisting in production. Make it as efficient as possible. If your labour is on something that can be postponed, put it off till after the war and make your labour tell now. Making war is the first business of all Canadians. Efficiency in labour is as important as efficiency in fighting.
