AT LAST

H. C. Brewster shot such a hole in the Bowser defences in Victoria in the by-election that the premier had not the courage to appoint another Minister of Finance during the session. Towards the close of the Legislature, Mr. Bowser patted H. B. Thompson on the head and tried to tell the lengthy liquor vote getter that he had really wanted him for finance minister all the time. Mr. Thompson, however, was not overcome by the premier's flattery and decided that he would take in the northern tour before making up his mind which move he would make. Evidently the north did not impress him strongly, as he has not made any perceptible move since.

If Thompson turned down the portfolio, there was a hope that A. C. Flummerfelt might be again persuaded to try his fortune, but it seems that this gentleman had quite enough of the turmoil and hard knocks of political warfare during his short and sharp bout with Mr. Brewster and he has not yet recovered his political wind. As a last resort, Bowser has selected Mayor Stewart, of Victoria, as his new financial leader, and Mr. Stewart's chief qualification for the job seems to be that he knows as little about finance as did Price Ellison, whose long suite in finance was the buying of government cows at bargain prices. Mayor Stewart's one strong point is that he has not been connected with the Bowser machine to any appreciable extent, which all goes to show that even Bowser himself has come to realize that connection with the machine is a danger to any man's chances of election. The Duncans Conservatives felt so certain about this that they insisted that their candidate, Captain Hayward, should repudiate Bowserism and run as an independent, and all over the province there are signs of new Conservative conventions. Such staunch Bowserites as "Billy" McLean, of Nelson, are being dropped entirely and every effort is being made to introduce men who have not been too intimately linked up with the past. So long, however, as W. J. Bowser is the head of the party it can never have the support of honest, thinking Conservatives.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sir Sam's understudy has been appointed and Sir Robert Borden is to be acting minister of militia. Sir Sam will have nothing to do now but run around Europe having his picture taken.

Wherever the provincial Liberal leaders go, they are given a great reception and the speakers are listened to with the closest interest. Everywhere there are signs of a sweeping change in public opinion.

There has never been any doubt about the election of Frank Mobley in Atlin and the rousing meeting at Anyox on Monday is still further evidence of the fact.

Russia is certainly playing a great part in the war. Besides scattering the Austro-German forces in the east, she is sending a steady stream of reinforcements to the western front to aid the French.

The Germans are boasting about the submarine trip across the Atlantic. "Barney" Johnson, the genial skipper of this coast, piloted a much smaller sub. than the Deutschland safely across the Atlantic over a year ago, so that the Germans have done nothing extraordinary with the Deutschland, which was specially built for the voyage.

by any private citizen who cares to raise the point. Mr. Brewster did the only thing possible. Bowser said that Mr. Brewster pocketed his cheque just the same. He reminded them that the cheque was for the session and not for any stated period.

After going fully into the land question showing that William Manson did not state the facts when he said there were 140,000 acres of land open at Francois Lake, he assured them that there were not five thousand acres out of the hands of the speculator. He reminded them as citizens of Prince Rupert that a city could only be developed as its hinterland was developed and the future of Prince Rupert depended upon the country behind it. For the next generation, he hoped to see Mr. Brewster and Mr. Macdonald leading the government of this province and he hoped to have the pleasure of sitting in the house with T. D. Pattullo and F. H. Mobley from the north, helping to clear away forever political conditions which should never have been permitted to exist in any British country.

H. C. Brewster.

H. C. Brewster said that instead of a part of a province they should have an Empire of the North, with proper development. People may be pessimistic because of present conditions but no man who knows anything of fishing, mining or the forest in this north land could be anything but an optimist. The resources have been allowed to lie dormant or peddled out to the friends of the government. That condition would quickly change.

In passing, Mr. Brewster referred to the drydock. "If Sir Wilfrid Laurier were premier in this year of grace, 1916, would Mr. H. B. Thompson be along here trying to tell you anything about your idle drydock?" he said. "I believe that, had Sir Wilfrid Laurier been returned to power, you would have had a nice little payroll right here in connection with the development which that master mind had planned and which would have rounded off his great life's work." But let me tell you," he said, "at no distant date, the grand old chief will again be returned to power and your railroad terminals and all that goes with them will make Prince Rupert a great city".

Mr. Brewster went on to trace the circle of production from the land to the store, then to the wholesaler and the manufacturer and back to the farmer, showing how production from the soil is the first essential to prosperity. Lack of production, through the holding up of the land was the curse of this province.

In dealing with the Vancouver election, he said that he had put in three months of tremendously hard work with Mr. Macdonald and he had got to know that gentleman thoroughly in that time and it did his heart good to see how the great audiences in Vancouver and Victoria rose to him when he came before them lately. Mr. Macdonald had been through the furnace but had not been burned to ashes. He stood the test and wherever they had gone the people had hailed him for the man he is.

Strong Men Needed.

He said he could not impress upon the people of the north too strongly the necessity for sending a solid representation of strong fighting men to Victoria. "You have had 'jelly-fish' in the past, and any fisherman will tell you how they hate jelly-fish, and I am something of a fisherman as well as a cannery man. I was in the house when your city charter was brought down, and the one man government said, 'They will have to take what they get', and your jelly-fish never said a word. You must send T. D. Pattullo, F. H. Mobley and A. M. Manson to Victoria. There are many more people to the south and many more members and the only way the north will be properly represented will be by men
