THE WESTERN DUEL

It becomes evident that the great duel on the western front between the Anglo-French offensive in the Somme region and the German offensive against Verdun is reaching its most critical stage. For five months the Germans have tried to batter a way into Verdun. They have gained a certain amount of territory, but, in doing so, have sacrificed half a million men of a calibre which they will find it hard to replace. The terrific artillery bombardment has shattered the French defence works, but it has not broken the splendid spirit of the French soldiers and their stalwart Allies from Russia. Every inch of the way is being fought desperately and the Germans are decidedly getting much the worst of the argument in regard to losses.

The Anglo-French offensive on the Somme front is an off-set against the big drive on Verdun, while it is also part of the big general offensive, in that the positions taken are being consolidated and turned into strong Allied defences. In contrast to the Verdun struggle the Anglo-French attack has been short, sharp and effective. It has drawn German troops in many thousands from other parts of the western front and upon its success depends the relaxing of the German efforts against the much-battered French fortress of Verdun.

Even should Verdun fall, however, the Germans have lost so many men in their attacks that it cannot be considered as an enemy gain except in so far as it delays the ultimate capture of Metz and the intervening highly mineralized country from which the enemy is drawing most of his huge supplies of steel. Verdun may fall, but the result will simply be that the Germans will have at that point a salient which will ever be a source of weakness.

NEW-BORN ZEAL

The Bowser press has developed a new-born respect for the powers of the legislature. This, however, is only a temporary sentiment which will disappear just as soon as it is convenient for Mr. Bowser again to treat some act of the House as "a scrap of paper." But where were the champions of the legislature when Mr. Bowser and Sir Richard McBride were framing the trans-action regarding the Agent-General's office? Where were they when the provisions of the act relating to the Pacific Great Eastern were being over-ridden as if they did not exist? Two vital clauses of the law, passed by the elected representatives of the people, were torn to pieces when the promoters of the Pacific Great Eastern divided $25,000,000 of capital stock among themselves without putting up a solitary cent and when the government over-paid them $7,000,000 of trust funds for which the people of British Columbia are liable. And what about the legislation affecting the enterprises of Mackenzie & Mann? Not one of the obligations assumed by the Canadian Northern promoters has been met, although according to Sir Thomas White, the people of British Columbia are going to be held to the financial terms of the agreements. The importance of the legislature in the eyes of Mr. Bowser and his friends is always subject to the exigencies of Bowser himself and his clients, Foley, Welch & Stewart and Mackenzie & Mann.—Victoria Times.

word. He called upon them to return Frank Mobley to Victoria as their representative and the representative of clean, honest government.

and H. C. Brewster, who had just come from there after holding a splendid meeting, took the platform. The Liberal leader delivered a great speech in which he shattered Mr. Bowser's statements in regard to the famous writ. The doubt as to the term of the legislature arose with the premier and it was only when Mr. Brewster objected to the payment of $15,000 a year to Sir Richard McBride that the trouble began.

Dealing with Bowser methods, he instanced the sending of a man of the calibre of F. W. Welsh over to England to look after the soldiers' vote and went on to describe the part played by that gentleman in the Vancouver plugging. He assured his hearers that the Vancouver election enquiry was not over and would not be over until the real culprits, the men at the top, had been brought to justice. The railroad policy and financial waste of the government he shot to pieces. At the conclusion of a speech which was eagerly listened to, he appealed to the men of the north to see to it that they sent Frank Mobley to Victoria to assist in the framing of decent, honest legislation. He said he had not met Mr. Mobley until recently, but he was glad to find that the men of Atlin had selected a candidate of such high standing and political independence of thought and action.

At both meetings, Frank H. Mobley was given a splendid reception. He dealt with the Liberal plans for assistance to the miner and the prospector and assured them that any money voted by the Liberals for any purpose whatever would be devoted to that purpose and not be used for the holding together of any political party as was done by the government at present. The men listened attentively to the various speakers for three hours, which was ample evidence of the extent of their interest.

BULKLEY VALLEY FALL CELEBRATION

The settlers of the Bulkley Valley district have decided to hold an auction of their surplus holdings of crops and cattle on Labor Day, September 4th, at Telkwa. In addition to the sale it is intended to hold a barbecue; horse races, baseball and other sports. If the gathering is a success it will likely become an annual event which will grow in importance as the importance of this fertile valley becomes more widely known.

The Farmers' Institute, at a recent meeting endorsed the idea of holding the celebration and the following executive was appointed: Messrs. A. J. Prudhomme, F. M. Dockrill, W. Croteau, Gus Timmermeister and T. J. Thorp. The following is the general committee: Telkwa—E. C. Barger, R. M. Burns, H. Caldwell, G. Caldwell, W. Croteau, F. M. Dockrill, Guy Farrow, E. M. Hoops, F. G. Heal, W. P. Johnson, T. E. Jefferson, Geoff. Macdonnell, J. J. McNeil, L. Schorn, A. J. Prudhomme, R. S. Sargent, R. P. Trimble and T. J. Thorp. Smithers—C. A. Chapman, J. N. Carr, L. L. De Voin, W. S. Henry, F. McPhee, and C. Wilcocks; with C. Barrett, Barrett Lake; J. E. Bostrom, Bickle, F. M. Brown, Houston; J. Bourgon, Hubert; W. N. Clark, South Bulkley; H. Davis, Houston; D. Jennings, Lake Kathleen; S. Long; Francois Lake; A. McInnes, North Bulkley; J. C. K. Sealy, Hazelton, and R. E. Williams, Hubert.

Coughing scatters germs—Stop it

Coughing increases the irritation of the already inflamed mucous membranes and is moreover apt to carry disease to others.

Mathieu's Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil promptly stops coughing, and soon, thanks to its tonic properties, effects a permanent cure.

The wonderful popularity of Mathieu's Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil is specially due to its great value as a permanent lung and bronchial healer.
