MANIPULATION

The Conservative defence of the Soldiers' Voting Act is feeble in the extreme. The Victoria Colonist, the chief of the Matson tribe, says that "the provisions of the law are ample to secure an honest vote" and that "the act will be honestly administered," but it does not attempt to go into any of the little peculiarities of the measure. It ignores entirely the fact that there is no provision made for Liberal scrutineers at any point of the vote taking, which lasts for six weeks, evidently with a sack hung up somewhere, where anyone who feels inclined to describe himself as ever having been in British Columbia may vote in any constituency he cares to choose.

The Colonist asserts that the act will be honestly administered, but it carefully ignores the fact that Fred Welsh has a great deal to do with its administration. Mr. Welsh may measure up to the Matsonian standard of honesty, but one cannot forget the ignominious part played by this gentleman in Vancouver during recent months, but, of course, the Colonist may feel that he played a perfectly honorable part, on the theory that all is fair in war and elections. Whatever the Colonist may think, it must be apparent to any ordinary mortal that a man whose conscience permits him to invite soap contractors to contribute money to the Bowser machine fund, and to add the amount to the price of the soap, is not a fit and proper person to represent the government of British Columbia in any election.

One cannot forget that this is the Welsh who was such a close friend of John L. Sullivan, and one wonders if the Colonist would have insisted that "the act will be honestly administered," had Sullivan been the Bowser agent sent over to control the soldiers' vote, instead of Welsh. The sending of a man of the stamp of Welsh not only aroused the suspicions of all Liberals but brought forth a stinging condemnation from Sir Hibbert Tupper. Surely the Colonist does not suggest that Sir Hibbert is a "conscienceless Liberal." If Bowser wishes to convince the people of the province that he wishes to have the soldiers' vote honestly recorded, let him have the election on one day, Sept. 14, with the taking of the vote entirely in the hands of officials of the British government. If he refuses to do this, he stands condemned as a manipulator of the worst type.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

William Manson had to withstand a regular bombardment of questions at the Bowser meeting at Trail on Monday night. Poor William was doing his best to explain away the McBride-Bowser land policy, but he found the audience far too critical for his comfort.

Price Ellison has received the Conservative nomination for Vernon once more. Ellison's abilities as a cattle dealer seem to be appreciated by a certain section around Vernon. It is certain that the great majority of the voters in that district will not support a man whose actions led to his resignation from the cabinet.

A local gentleman who has no political leanings describes the road from Lakelse Hot Springs to the railroad as "begging description."

Wherever Liberal candidates are admitted to the platform in Bowser meetings, the gatherings immediately become enthusiastic Liberal demonstrations. Each meeting shows more clearly the trend of public opinion throughout the province.

This is the sort of stuff the News-Advertiser serves up to its readers:—"The six Liberal candidates in Vancouver dared not face a new convention." The News-Ad. evidently has a very poor opinion of the intelligence of its readers.

Sir Thomas White is mentioned as the next premier of the Dominion. What has happened to Sir Sam? It is not so long since a section of the Tory machine wanted Borden to give way to the Minister of Militia.

The government has granted $500 towards the building of a trail from the shore to the Salt Lake. Any lady who tried to make the trip last Sunday in white shoes will say it was badly needed. There is nothing like the proximity of an election for bringing things along.

JAMES CARRUTHERS VISITED DRYDOCK

Before leaving for the south this morning, James Carruthers visited the drydock, accompanied by Mayor McCaffery and J. H. Pillsbury. Mr. Carruthers was particularly interested in the plant as he is largely interested in shipping and shipbuilding. He is a large shareholder in the Northern Navigation Company, which owns and operates some of the finest steamers on the Great Lakes.

"KNIGHT OF THE RANGE" AT WESTHOLME THEATRE

Tonight, at the Westholme, there is another Red Feather feature, a sensational western drama in five acts, featuring Harry D. Carey (the Tom Larnagan of "Graft" fame) supported by Olive Golden and the Champion Roughriders of the World. In "A Knight of the Range," the scenes are laid in a typical western frontier town where gambling is wide open and the dance hall is in full swing, as in Nome and Dawson in the early days. There is a great round-up scene, when the cow-boys gather in thousands of cattle on the ranges, rooping and branding the steers. There is a thrilling stage coach hold-up and a running fight for several miles through the mountain passes. There is, of course, a delightful love story running throughout the five reels, which are full of thrilling and startling situations. Two good comedies complete a fine show.

Maud Fealy, in the Irish drama last evening, was much admired, while the Irish music played by the Westholme orchestra added greatly to the enjoyment of this play.
