SCOTT

The Journal seems to be immensely relieved by the fact that John T. Scott, in Seattle, has made the statement that Bowser was not the gentleman who financed him in his nefarious transactions in the Vancouver by-election. There seems to have been a deadly fear in the Tory mind as to what Scott would say. However, the outstanding fact as to who was responsible for the despicable work, which the Tories have striven in vain to foist on to the shoulders of M. A. Macdonald, remains to be discovered.

The first step in this direction is being taken by the Vancouver Liberals, just as the first step in the original investigation was taken by them. The Liberals do not wish to learn that the premier of the province was personally responsible for the crime, but they most decidedly wish to know exactly WHO was, not that they might make political capital out of such work, but that they might bring the miscreant to justice.

Bowser, by the issuing of a warrant for Scott's arrest at the time when his evidence was needed most and at a time when the scum of the Seattle jails was given exemption from any arrest, prevented Scott's appearance before the committee at Victoria. The attorney-general has been given one more opportunity to show that he is willing that justice should be done, and he cannot afford to ignore the offer, though it is couched in pretty strong language. If Bowser fails in his duty as attorney-general, as he has failed repeatedly and flagrantly in the past, he must stand condemned by his own action, or lack of it.

The Liberals will bring Scott back and they will get to the root of the matter, not in order that they may triumph over a political opponent, but that the fair name of Vancouver and of the province of British Columbia may be cleared. Bowser has boasted loudly of his great regard for the fair name of the province, let him show that he has a real regard for that name. He has been content that, by allowing Scott to remain away from this country, the stigma of the whole miserable business should remain. Had Bowser known that Scott's evidence would implicate Mr. Macdonald or any other leading member of the Liberal party, Scott would have been brought back months ago. By keeping Scott out of the way, the Bowser campaign of insinuation could still be carried on with impunity, regardless of the consequences to the province. Even if Bowser does consent to the withdrawal of the warrant for Scott's arrest, he will do so, not that justice may be done, but because F. C. Wade has forced him to take action, which he should, as attorney-general, have taken long ere this.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Even at Prince George, where so much depends upon the rushing forward of the P. G. E. construction, the people are thoroughly convinced that H. C. Brewster took the only course when he issued the famous writ. The Prince George people want the P. G. E. completed, but they want it done at the least possible cost to the province and not in the haphazard, squander millions, Bowser fashion.

The logic of the News-Advertiser is past understanding. Dealing editorially with the magnificent action of the Canadian Cart-ridge Company in handing over its $750,000 war profits to the government, it says that this action was taken as "a way of escape," as the government would have taken $150,000 of the amount anyhow. In the Matsonian view, the cartridge company handed over $750,000 in order to escape a tax of $150,000. From this one may glean a faint idea of how this Matsonian organ arrives at some of its calculations in British Columbia affairs.

News from the western front is meagre these last few days but that does not mean that there is nothing doing. The silence probably means that there is a big troop movement afoot, with the reports coming later.

Now that Germany has issued instructions to her agents to blow up all Allied ammunition in the United States, regardless of the loss of American life and property, Washington may actually get busy and do something more drastic than penning notes.

RANKER TO GENERAL

Major-Gen. Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir William began his military career as a ranker in the 16th Lancers, rising to be sergeant-major, after which he was gazetted second lieutenant in the 3rd Dragoon Guards in 1888. Most of his early campaigning was done in India and he set himself to acquire a wide knowledge of the native languages, which proved of inestimable value when he held the position of Staff Captain in the Intelligence Department at Simla from 1892 to 1896.

Sir William earned much distinction by his work with the Chitral Relief Forces and took part in the hardest of the fighting in that hill campaign, being severely wounded. In the South African war, he was one of the few officers who made a reputation and was afterward Commandant of the Staff College at Camberley, afterwards being made Director of Military Training. At the outbreak of the present war, he went to France as Quarter-master-General, and ultimately became General French's Chief of Staff, later being appointed right-hand man to Earl Kitchener at the War Office, where he is now chief military adviser. Sir William was born in the little village of Welbourn, in Lincolnshire, but his parents were Scotch and he is familiarly known in the army as "Wullie."
