RECRUITING

It is satisfactory to learn that Ottawa is revising Canadian recruiting methods and that an effort will be made to bring some sort of system where overlapping has been the general rule. The greatest cause of overlapping has been the fact that far too many battalions were being raised in the same districts at the same time. In Winnipeg, at one time, there were ten battalions, each many hundreds under strength though they had been recruiting for over a year and each with agents covering the same field.

The cause of this trouble was of course the enormous number of commissioned officers, with political influence, who had to be attached somewhere. Battalions were created in order to provide positions for the enormous array of majors and colonels which existed, and the result was that each battalion was in bitter competition with its neighbors for recruits. Had a few battalions been recruited at a time, the men would have proceeded! overseas in a matter of weeks, instead of having to wait around for months, and in some cases for over a year, before being sent abroad. The quicker movement across to England would have stimulated recruiting and less difficulty would have been experienced in bringing battalions up to strength.

SOLDIERS' VOTING

has been made for a report as per. to machinery employed in the election.

It is to be hoped that the members of the House are provided with copies of the Soldiers' Voting Act. That is all they require, in order to be enlightened as to the machinery employed. The scheme outlined in the original act is so utterly foreign to British ideas BRITISH COLUMBIA of justice that it will cause some further comment.

If the members are familiar with the activities of "Soapy" Welsh, in regard to the Vancouver school board contracts, they will be further enlightened as to the possibilities of the act, when it is interpreted and administered by an energetic disciple of Bowser. Bowser methods are unheard of in British politics and it will be hard for the average British member to conceive of such a thing as manipulation, but, unfortunately for Canada, the history of the McBride-Bowser administration and of the lately KELLY WILL APPEAL deceased Roblin government is fairly well known in London, and, in the light of history, the many loopholes and kinks in the act will be only too apparent.
