DIVERSION

In trying to bolster up a situation which they already know to be hopeless, the Bowserites are resorting to the most ridiculous statements in order to divert public attention away from the real issue of the election. Realizing that their charges of "plugging" in connection with the defeat of C. E. Tisdall in Vancouver are of no avail unless they can account for the landslide in Victoria, they now state that "800 voted in Victoria at that election who were not entitled to vote." They do not attempt to say that there was any "plugging" in Victoria, though they are probably aware that Harry Price and his team-mate, Victor Love, were at their usual game, which was very clearly shown up in the notorious Price-Love letters.

It would be interesting if the Bowser press was to explain exactly which men voted in Victoria who had no right to vote. It might also state as to whether these gentlemen were supplied with some of the whisky which Harry Price was good enough to purchase for the election day "blind-pig," and whether any of them were the men whose fares were paid to Victoria by the same Harry Price. Harry was supposed to have retired from the political arena after his fifty cents a ton coal graft was laid bare, but he admitted that he had paid the fares of a large number of men, simply out of the goodness of his heart, bless him.

The by-elections were the most unfortunate thing which Bowser could ever have devised and even the "plugging" bomb went off too soon to be of any service. The scheme was to keep the whole nefarious plot until a few days before the election and then to spring it on the public. Fortunately, the Liberals became aware that there had been irregularities and immediately set an enquiry afoot, with the result that one man was sent to jail, and, but for the protection of Bowser, several others should have accompanied him.

The Vancouver bomb having fizzled out in the most tantalizing way imaginable, and Harry Price having been proven by the evidence to have been guilty of his usual tactics, there was nothing left to be done but to scare up another story near election time. Of course, there will be other stories hatched yet. Just before polling day, we may expect the usual canard in the shape of a forged telegram, though that game has been played out in Victoria, or some wild fantastic tale that Mr. Pattullo meant to import thousands of voters from Manchuria or the North Pole by aeroplane. Anything will do so long as it is black enough. However, the people are now wide awake to the calibre of the men who have made this province and its finances and resources their dice and they may spring any kind of a tale they care. The notorious game is up and the people of British Columbia are in no mood to be fooled on this occasion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It may be taken for granted that Hon. William Manson and T. D. Pattullo are both decent respectable gentlemen. The question before the electors is not what they are but what they represent. William Manson stands for Bowserism and has shown that he will stand for anything Boss Bowser may try to put over, while T. D. Pattullo would not for a moment submit to any such man.

The first duty of the Brewster government will be to cut down the expenditure until it bears some relationship to the revenue of the province. Manitoba had the same duty to preform and did it thoroughly and Brewster will be equally successful.

With the cost of keeping up the Bowser political machine eliminated, the finances of British Columbia will be brought down to a firm basis by H. C. Brewster.

Even the Vancouver School Board will carry on its business at reduced cost when the Bowser government is defeated, as contractors will not find it necessary to contribute sums to any political machine.

TUG-OF-WAR

There were five competing teams in the tug-of-war at the Labor Day sports yesterday afternoon. In the first tie, the Railroad team defeated the Gold Storage; in the second, St. Andrew's Society defeated the Clerks, and in the final, after a dour tussle, the Scotch team were victors over the Railroad men.

HIGHLY INTERESTING FISHING COMPETITION

As was anticipated, the halibut fishing contest in the harbor proved one of the most interesting and educative items in the Labor Day sports. About six o'clock, the schooner Volunteer dropped four dories, each having a crew of two, and at a signal, a float was dropped and the race was on. One man rowed while the other paid out the line. Paying out 800 yards of line meant travelling best part of the way across the harbor; rowing back to the starting buoy and hauling in, across the bay again.

From the buoy, there is fifty fathoms of line; then three hundred fathoms of ground line, and fifty fathoms of buoy line at the other end. Hauling in this great length of line is no easy work, even without fish on, and, in a heavy sea and with a load of halibut, some of them weighing well over a hundred pounds, it must be tremendously hard work. In the competition, each boat caught fish of some kind, though they did not want them. The Hanson brothers, off the P. Doreen, caught a wolf fish, a denizen of the deep which is very rare, even in the deep sea. Mr. Lipsett is having it placed on ice and displayed at Frizzell's Meat Market.

The winners of the first prize were E. Hanson and W. Doucette, their time being 35 minutes. The others had the second and third prizes divided between them, as there was some difficulty because of the fact that one of the crews had not made their line fast to the anchor.

The public is much indebted to Harry Lipsett, of Lipsett, Cunningham, for the staging of this most interesting and instructive competition and to the firm for their handsome prize of $50, $20 of which went to the winners and $30 was divided between the other three crews. Mr. Lipsett will prepare something bigger and still more interesting for next year, when he hopes to arrange a competition on a larger scale.
