CONTRACTOR SAYS TENDER INCREASED TO PROVIDE FUNDS FOR POLITICAL MACHINE—OTTAWA CONSIDERING RETRENCHMENT—SOLDIERS VOTING ON THE FIRING LINE

(Special to The Daily News.)

Winnipeg, Sept. 13.—In the investigation into the construction of the Agricultural College here, under the Roblin government, the representative of Carter, Hall & Aldinger, the contractors, admits increasing his firm's tender for the purpose of contributing to the Dominion and provincial election funds, at the suggestion of the Hon. Robert Rogers.

Retrenchment.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—In view of the enormous debt which is being carried by Canada on account of the war, it is reported that the government is considering retrenchment and will probably suspend the Welland Canal and Parliament Buildings reconstruction.

Financier Dead.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—Manager Alexander, of the London Guarantee and Accident Insurance Co., is dead of heart failure.

Soldiers' Voting.

London, Sept. 13.—The British Columbia soldiers are voting in London, Bramshott, Shorncliffe and all convalescent institutions and hospitals. Balloting is continuing on the firing line until Thursday. It is doubtful if the total vote can be secured, as many of the Canadians are engaged in the Somme offensive.

To the Electors

To the Electors of the City of Prince Rupert,

Tomorrow is election day. I have been a resident of this city since the town started and I can think of no single benefit that the government has been to this city, while, on the contrary, I can see where it has done the city a great deal of harm.

The government's attitude towards Prince Rupert is well illustrated by Bowser's own statement, namely, that the Pacific Great Eastern was deliberately projected for the express purpose of diverting the traffic of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Prince George to Vancouver. Directly after Bowser had made this statement, my opponent assured the electors of Vancouver that the Pacific Great Eastern must be completed immediately.

The government of this province has been crooked, corrupt and inefficient and my opponent has been a party to it and cannot escape responsibility, while at the same time he has never had the courage to stand up for the rights of this city and northern British Columbia.

I want you, the electors, to give me a chance to help to bring about a betterment of conditions. I could not do worse than my opponent has done and I think that I can do better.

If you elect me as your representative, I pledge you that I will use my every endeavor to bring about good government for the general welfare of the province and will see to it to the best of my ability that the city of Prince Rupert and northern B. C. are fairly and properly treated. I think that the people of Prince Rupert know me well enough to believe that I do not lack the courage to stand up and fight for what I believe to be right. The weak always go under and we have had enough of weakness. I have abiding and unbounded faith in this young city and all northern British Columbia, and having gone about the country constantly as I have for the past eighteen months, I have good reason for the faith that is in me. Courage, common sense and decency in the conduct of our public affairs will make this a wonderful country.

Fellow electors, this has been a long fight and the argument is now in your hands for judgment. I await your verdict with every confidence that you will manifest in most unmistakable fashion your disapproval of wrongdoing in high office and your determination to bring about a betterment of conditions both moral and material.

T. D. PATTULLO.

Drydock Secret Out

The secret of the inactivity of the drydock is out at last. The government at Ottawa did not want it to be leased. Miles Cotton had all his financial arrangements made for the starting up of shipbuilding at Prince Rupert, but the government intervened. William Manson boasts about the aid to shipbuilding passed by the Bowser administration but that aid was evidently to be confined to the companies in the south, in one of which Bowser was a director. What is the use of aid to shipbuilding to Prince Rupert if Prince Rupert is debarred by the government from having any shipbuilding?

President Chamberlin is mentioned as being in agreement with the premier in not permitting this company to lease the drydock, but Mr. Chamberlin long ago made it very clear that it was his earnest desire that work should proceed at the earliest possible moment. Would Mr. Chamberlin have sent the company's solicitor, H. H. Hansard, to Prince Rupert with Mr. Cotton on a wild goose chase? Would Mr. Chamberlin have carried on negotiations with several firms over a period of many months, had he thought that the drydock should not be leased? Would he have had Mr. Cotton working steadily for three months arranging the incorporation of a company to take a lease of the dock, had he known that the dock would not be leased?

Mayor McCaffery is asked to communicate with Sir Robert Borden, Hon. Robert Rogers and H. S. Clements in his efforts to have work proceed. Those are the gentlemen responsible for the fact that the drydock is asleep while every shipyard on the continent is working feverishly. The Borden government is alone responsible for the fact that Prince Rupert is looked upon as a still-born. The government excuse is that we must await the result of the investigation of the railway commission. How many years will that take?

By the time that commission has reached a decision, the rush of shipbuilding will be over, the yards of Europe will be free of their war pressure and Prince Rupert will have lost its opportunity to get away to a big start in what should be its staple industry. This city is of so little significance that the government did not think it worth while to make arrangements by which the government could take over the plant of the company in a given time, provided the commission decide on government ownership. There was no necessity to tie up the plant for a long term of years in a lease to one company. The whole affair is typical of the treatment Prince Rupert has received at the hands of the Borden administration, and the first blow for Prince Rupert must be struck at the provincial polls tomorrow. Prince Rupert has everything to gain and certainly nothing to lose by voting solidly for T. D. Pattullo tomorrow. This city has been backed off the map and it is up to the citizens to see that it is put back there and in larger, bolder type than ever before. Citizens, it is up to you.
