MARY FULLER AT THE

WESTHOLME THEATRE

Mary Fuller, one of the prettiest of screen favorites, is the big attraction at the Westholme tonight and tomorrow, in "Under Southern Skies," in five acts. It is a story of the old south and brings out beautifully the romance of the olden days in that land of chivalry. This is one of the finest efforts of Miss Fuller and should draw a large audience.

The sixth episode of "The Master Key" completes a fine program. This serial is becoming more interesting as it progresses and is looked forward to every week.

Olof Hanson left this morning for Lake Kathlyn.

He says that the great majority of the boys are against the government, but that the Liberals were greatly handicapped in carrying on the election, having but one representative over there and he a stranger who did not know the names of the Liberal candidates, while the Tories were well represented.
