MONASTIR THREATENED WITH ENVELOPMENT -- GERMANS ASSUME OFFENSIVE

SERBS STRIKE A HEAVY BLOW AT MONASTIR

Capture of Northern Points Has Simplified Allies' Task in Macedonia—Rumanians Hold Out.

(Special to The Daily News.)

London, Oct. 21.—The Serbians on the left flank of the Allied line in Macedonia, by capturing Brod, Dradilovo and Velyeselo, have gained the position behind the main Bulgarian line against which the Entente Allies unsuccessfully attacked last Saturday.

This latest advance is considered to be of the greatest importance to the entire Entente program against Monastir. The Serbian wing has now been able to swing around well to the north of Monastir, and the threat of an enveloping movement is likely to cause the evacuation of this important Bulgarian stronghold.

Transylvania.

Following the setback to the Austro-Germans in their effort to break into Rumania through the passes of the Carpathians, the enemy have again returned to the attack but have made very little progress in the last two days, the Russian reinforcements having stiffened the Rumanian lines.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUNTER AND SOLDIERS' VOTE ACT

Chief Justice Hunter, in Supreme Court chambers in Victoria, after hearing the preliminaries in the South Vancouver-Richmond soldiers' vote muddle, remarked, after reading the act as to the old country vote and count, that someone would be raising the question of extra-territorial legislation. So far as he could see there was nothing to prevent a moribund legislature from enabling a band of Zulus in South Africa to vote.

GERMANS ARE ATTACKING ON THREE FRONTS

Von Falkenhayn has been Wounded—Allies Checked in Macedonia—Italians are Gaining.

(Special to The Daily News.)

Paris, Oct. 21.—On the French, Galician and Dobrudja fighting fronts the armies of the Central Powers have assumed the offensive and are holding the Entente Allies checked in northern Macedonia.

The battle on the Transylvania-Rumanian frontier continues and on the Dobrudja front, from the Black Sea to the Danube, Von Mackenzen's forces have struck heavily at the Rumanians.

Von Falkenhayn Wounded.

Rome, Oct. 21.—General Von Falkenhayn, who was transferred to the command of the Austro-German armies on the Transylvanian front from the west, after Rumania entered the war, has been wounded and compelled to relinquish his new command.

Italian Success.

SOLDIERS' VOTE ELECTS M'INNIS IN FORT GEORGE

(Special to The Daily News.)

Vancouver, Oct. 21.—John McInnis has defeated W. R. Ross, in Fort George, according to available figures of the Canadian soldiers' vote cast in England and France. Ross led by only 17 votes after the soldiers' votes in Canada had been checked up. The majority of the soldiers voted against prohibition.

ROSSLAND EXCITED OVER RICH GOLD STRIKE

Rossland, Oct. 19.—Rossland is all excitement today over a big strike made in close proximity to the city by S. Simpson, a Rossland old time prospector, owner of the Crown granted claim "O. I. C." on the south side of Murphy Creek, north of Green mountain, and returns have just been received from the Spokane office of the Marsh Assay and Testing Laboratory giving returns from the ore as follows: 732 ounces were under the test with $15,150.28 in gold, $85.60 in silver and $4.70 in copper.

Simpson has held his claim for twenty years and the wonderful returns just received must certainly justify his faith in the property. The fortunate prospector is just in receipt of the reports of the assays and it is more than likely there will be increased activity in this locality immediately.

BRITISH CAVALRY ON THE SOMME FRONT.—A very unusual sight in this war of big guns and trenches is this column of British cavalry marching over captured territory on the western front, which might be imagined as belonging to an earlier war when hostilities were carried on in the open.

FREEDOM AND EQUALITY ESSENCE OF LIBERALISM

Political Liberalism is not a fixed set of dogmas—a mere thing, finite, immutable, dead. It is a vital idea, a living spirit, an irrepressible life. It grows as the life of the people grows; it changes in detail of form as the spiritual realities of the social order emerge above the seen and temporal; it widens in its scope and purpose as "the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

In every age and over every continent the soul of historic Liberalism has been the dynamic of every social revolution against oppression, the energizing impulse in every movement in State and in Church toward the larger and truer democratic freedom. In every instance it supplies the visionary gleam, the compelling motive, the blazed trail.

Liberalism can't stand still, never did stand still, satisfied even with its own best achievements. The breath of its life is not in the good thing that has come, but in the better thing that is "the becoming." When Lord John Russell, reviewing the great and radical things accomplished, back to the Reform Bill of 1832, expressed the opinion that it was "time to rest and be thankful," he gave the lie to the instinct in his own life. The British Liberal even in that day, who could be at rest in the Commons, must have shut his heart to the cry of the disinherited millions and his fit place was the House of Lords. Liberalism at rest is Liberalism decaying—the stuff out of which is made, in Britain and in Canada, the most self-satisfied and intolerant of Tories.

Freedom and equality are of the very essence of Liberalism. The fight for freedom—freedom for the individual, for society, and for the State—is the distinctive feature, under one form or another, of every Liberal program everywhere. And that freedom in a free State implies the right of every law-abiding citizen to speak what he thinks, to go where he pleases, to work where he will, and to buy what he wants.

Freedom of speech, freedom of travel, freedom of service, and freedom of trade—those marks of free citizenship in a free State—are the lawful and necessary outgrowth of the very root-principle of historic political Liberalism. That radical principle is this: Equality of opportunity for all and special privileges for none. And that principle is essential to civil freedom and must be held sacred, even though, in the lawless spasms and for the critical moment of war, the higher interests of common justice and the Defence of the Realm may override the rights and liberties of the individual citizen.

And all this talk about "Old Liberals" and "New Liberals" is meaningless, when it is not mischievous, in that it misses the truth that the real badge of Liberalism does not consist in names and signs and shibboleths, but in the devotion of mind and motive and purpose to the causes of freedom and equality in which the Liberal principle fights for its life.

The old fight of Liberalism was for the rights and liberties of the individual in his relations with other individuals and with the State. The new fight of Liberalism, in this new day of the Social Problem, is more than that: it is also the fight for liberty and an equal chance against those vast organized powers of wealth and privilege, those trusts and combines and monopolies which continue to grow.
