IMPERIAL NEWS SERVICE

Among the many questions raised as a result of the war is that of an Imperial news service by which the various parts of the Empire will be kept more closely in touch with each other than at present. One of the blessings of the war is that it has shown up the weak spots in our wide Empire, as well as the strength of the ties which bind the various Dominions to the mother country.

Prominent newspaper men visiting Canada from the Antipodes are strongly advocating an Imperial news service and it is something well worth going after. The members of the British family are far apart, but linked up by cable, and, up to the present, cable rates have been so high that the interchange of news between the various parts of the Empire has been meagre. The large volume of war news transmitted across the Atlantic, bringing with it a much more intimate knowledge of things and places in Europe, has probably been responsible for the birth of the idea, and the idea should be fostered until it becomes a fact. It is not only essential that one know oneself but that one know his neighbor, particularly if they are of the same family.

In normal times, we get little news from Australia and New Zealand and just as little from South Africa, and what we do get is usually rather ancient. An Imperial news service flashed around the world every day at reasonable press rates would work wonders in bringing the interests of the various parts of the Empire into line with each other. The line would travel from London to South Africa, on to New Zealand and Australia and then to Canada, across this continent and through to London again. There can be little doubt that the interchange of news and ideas would lead to a broader interest and a wider knowledge which would ultimately lead to a stronger trade relationship and more business between the various parts of the Empire. The idea is big with possibilities.

A man may be only fifty or a hundred miles away from you, yet, if you have no means of communication with him, he might as well be non-existent. A Dominion thousands of miles away, if linked up by a press service, is your next door neighbor in whom you take a growing interest, which he reciprocates. The lines of communication are already in place; all that is required is a sufficiently cheap service to bring about daily intercourse. The press is a powerful factor throughout the world today and it can be made still more useful by giving it the benefit of an Imperial news exchange.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Los Angeles has had two earthquake shocks. One advantage of the northern part of this coast is that it has such a crust that no quake seems able to make the slightest impression on it.

Norway has at last stirred up Berlin in regard to its submarine campaign. Scarcely a day passes but a Norwegian vessel is sent below and the Norwegian people have had quite enough of it. Britain will back them in any protest they may care to make.

Potting German aeroplanes is evidently becoming quite a popular pastime for the French aviators over the Somme front.

The Germans have found that assuming the offensive on the Somme is even more costly than remaining on the defensive. They are getting it hot both going and coming as it were.

The assassin of the Austrian premier seems to have thought that stating that he committed the deed for purely political reasons was some alleviation of the offence. Perhaps the peace party may be inclined to take a lenient view on that account but the court is liable to be interested only in the hard fact that the premier was assassinated.

Poor Constantine must feel deeply grieved since the Allies pay no attention to his offer to recall his troops from Larissa but demand that they be brought, and also that all war supplies be handed over at the same time.

Ralph Smith and J. S. Cowper, addressing a big Liberal meeting in Vancouver on Thursday night said that it would be necessary to have the Federal government ease the financial burdens of this province and that it was essential that we have a sympathetic government at Ottawa. At the first opportunity we will have such a government, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier at its head.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE ACCIDENT

At the close of the council last night, Mayor McCaffery gave the aldermen an opportunity to discuss the distressing blasting accident of yesterday afternoon. Ald. Nelson moved that the matter be thoroughly investigated at once and that the following committee be asked to hold an investigation:—Mayor McCaffery, Ald. Casey, Ald. Dybbavn, George R. Naden and W. Tobey. This was seconded by Ald. McRae.

Ald. Dybbavn suggested that the ground be gone over before any more work was done and it was decided that the committee meet at nine a. m. and that the city engineer be instructed to stop all work meantime.

PLANK ROADWAYS

At the close of the council meeting last night, Ald. Casey raised the question of the upkeep of the plank roadways of the city. In view of the fact that the cost of upkeep was steadily increasing, he thought that some effort should be made to introduce some permanent roadways. He instanced the road from Hays Creek to Seal Cove which he said would need redecking next summer. He thought that the city should try to find some better plan than simply redecking these plank roads. He moved that the matter be referred to the Board of Works and the Finance Committee for report. This was seconded by Ald. Dybbavn and carried unanimously.

CRICKET

A thoroughly enjoyable though late in the season cricket match was played on Recreation Park on Saturday afternoon, when a visiting eleven was entertained by the Prince Rupert Club. The visitors scored 74 and the local boys 81 for 8 wickets.

DUSTIN FARNUM AS

DAVID GARRICK TONIGHT

Dustin Farnum, in "David Garrick" at the Westholme, scores one of the greatest successes of his career. Garrick, imbued with an ambition to uplift the stage, has proven impervious to all the glances of the fair sex but at last becomes enamoured of a young lady in a box at the theatre. The attraction is mutual and Ada Ingot makes no secret of the fact that she is in love with Garrick. Her father, who has other plans for her, tries to induce Garrick to leave London, but Garrick also has other plans. There are many amusing incidents in the unravelling of the story while it is also full of tenderness, pathos and passion. The staging is perfect, the scenes in the Old Nag's Head Tavern being particularly good. In this rendezvous of poets, actors, sportsmen and the nobility, one sees a cock fight progressing in one corner, while a poet bores a friend with his effusions nearby and round the corner there is a pugilistic encounter. It is a wonderful representation of a great play which has grown more famous with age and Dustin Farnum makes a great David Garrick. There is also an Eclair Gazette and, as usual, delightful music.
