STATE CONTROL

As was to be expected, Premier Lloyd George has not wasted any time in making his plans known, in a general way, and they are along the lines which might have been expected. The situation demanded drastic action and it required a man of the fearlessness and vision of Lloyd George to formulate the new schemes.

Mr. Lloyd George has always had the faculty of expressing in word and action the thoughts which were trying to find expression from the public mind, and, in proclaiming a much wider sphere of the nationalization of industry, the new premier is simply doing what he believes to be the proper thing, and what the people of Britain for months have thought should be done.

One of the greatest difficulties of the war has been the reconciling of labor. The working man has objected very strenuously to putting out extraordinary effort to produce coal and other war necessities in increased quantity, only to see the capitalist pocket the bulk of the fruits of this extra labor. The people generally have objected seriously to paying enormously increased prices for food, when they knew that the bulk of the increase went to swell the dividends of the shipping magnates. The whole system was wrong, and the people have every confidence that Lloyd George is the man to right the wrong. He will have a struggle, but he has been struggling against odds all his life, and usually has come out on top.

The absorption of war profits will meet with the approval of all but the profiteers, and many of these will be only too willing to do their share. A complete system of state Socialism is a big scheme, but there never was a better opportunity to put such a system to the test. If the people only forget that there is such a word as Socialism, which has been made to mean many things which it was never intended to mean, everything will go on splendidly. What the movement is called matters little. What it is, is the main thing, and it is simply an uniting of every force of industry and capital towards the attaining of liberty and justice for Europe and civilization.

Much depends on the outcome of the experiment, as, if it is successful, the people of Britain will never revert to the old system again. The war has thrown people out of the grooves in which they were wont to exist, and over the edges of which they could not see. They are looking on life today with the wide-open, startled eyes of little children looking around for someone to lead them through a strange world. All the old landmarks and guide-posts have been obliterated.

For centuries, the world has been becoming more democratic. The evolution has been scarcely perceptible in most countries, though France slid suddenly, too suddenly, on one occasion. If Lloyd George's scheme of nationalization of wealth and industry is successful, Britain may suddenly take a jump forward of at least a century without feeling the bump very seriously. The great stumbling-block to Socialism has been that, though its ideals were of the highest and most beautiful description, its exponents were usually suspected of wanting something instead of giving. Today, Socialism

Killing the Calves

All sorts of excuses are offered for the high price of beef, the most plausible being the alleged demand for veal—"the killing of calves which should be allowed to grow into regular beef." You cannot have beef if you eat it as "veal," but you can have Shredded Wheat Biscuit which contains more real nutriment than beef and costs much less. Shredded wheat biscuit is the whole wheat steam-cooked, shredded and baked. Make it your "meat" for ten days and see how much better you feel. Wholesome and strengthening for any meal with milk or cream or in combination with fruits.

Made in Canada

has its great opportunity, when the nation, to a man, is ready to give all, to life itself, for the cause of liberty and justice. It is a case of "to the last man and the last dollar," and it is only right that the men and dollars should be marshalled into one great fighting force.

LILIAN WALKER AT WESTHOLME TONIGHT

Miss Lilian Walker, one of the brightest stars on the movie stage is screened at the Westholme tonight and tomorrow in the four-act drama, "Mrs. Dane's Danger." Whether in comedy or drama, Miss Walker is always brilliant and this feature should be well worth seeing. There is also a Selig Tribune and other good films.

The Royal Standard Test

Here's where we test the choicest samples of Canada's six million acre wheat crop. We grind them into flour in the little mill you see on the left of the picture. Then comes the supreme test—bread-baking. If the bread is perfect in every way we pronounce the wheat A1 and the flour—ROYAL STANDARD.
