ALLIED TERMS

The Entente Powers have not submitted their peace terms to Germany but they have plainly told Washington upon what basis they will be prepared to consider a settlement. It is asserted that President Wilson knows the terms which Germany is prepared to offer, and, if this is so, and it is not unlikely, then Washington is now aware as to the possibility of an early peace conference. It is very unlikely that any further information will be divulged until Ambassador Gerard has had another conference with the German diplomats but it is clear that the matter is not ended, provided Germany is really sincere in her desire to discuss a settlement.

The telegraphic despatches give the barest outline of the Allied demands and there are several important points not mentioned, for instance, the situation in the Dardanelles. Russia has been promised Constantinople and dominance over the outlet from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean, and it is not unlikely that Berlin will consider this to be one of the most objectionable features of the proposals. Even though Germany may be prepared to consent to the partial breaking up of the Austrian ring by the liberation of the Italians, Slavs and Rumanians who at present come under Austrian rule, and may be willing to agree to the restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro, she is likely to seriously object to Russian dominance in the Dardanelles. Constantinople formed the centre of Germany's eastern plans and she is certain to object strenuously to a Russian barrier being placed in her way. She will not object to the driving of the Turk out of Europe, as her own intentions for the future were undoubtedly along that very line, with this difference, that she foresaw German instead of Russian dominance at the head of the Mediterranean. It is too much to expect that Berlin has given up dreaming of expansion and her fondest dreams were of the latent wealth of the East.

What is to become of Austria will be of much less consequence to the German diplomats than the question as to what bars are to be raised against future German advances towards India and Asia. It will be highly interesting to watch Germany's attitude towards the Entente proposals. If she is willing to contemplate for a moment Russian rule in Constantinople, then she must be in a very much worse plight than is imagined. If Berlin makes up its mind to give up all its glorious dreams of the East, it is a very certain sign that Germany is not only defeated but shattered for generations to come.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sir John Jellicoe's statement regarding the submarine menace is probably the forerunner of the arming of all merchant ships. It is to be noted that the Admiralty is giving out no information regarding the number of German submarines captured. It is well known that the number taken is enormous.

Ottawa reports indicate that Premier Borden realizes that he will have his hands full during the session which opens next week and that he does not care to add to his troubles by taking up the question of prohibition.

John T. Scott, the disappearing expert, has again been located. It is to be hoped that he is held in safe keeping until the Vancouver election scandal is cleared up. John has been an expensive luxury to his friends and a source of enormous trouble to both governments but he has earned a certain degree of fame which would not have been his otherwise.

If the Allied peace terms are ultimately met by Germany, the "Sick Man of Europe" will become the "Sick Man of Asia."
